DESERONTO, ONT., FRIDAY, AUGUST 1, 1890.

HERE YOU GO!

CHEAPSIDE'S

Great Semi-Annual Clearing Sale.

Though much later in the season than usual, in consequence of our trade being brisk and much larger than last year, commenced bright and early on Saturday Morning, 26th Inst.

AND WILL CONTINUE FOR TWO WEEKS.

NEW FALL GOODS are arriving, and lots of them are on the road. Our stock of Summer Goods is heavy, much heavier than we wish to see at this time of year, and we are determined that this season's purchases must be sold this season. This has been our policy for years, and Cheapside's sale this season will be the same live, brisk, go-ahead sale, characterized by the same vim, push and low prices, for which Cheapside's sales have always been noted, and the bare announcement of which has been sufficient to fill the store. This sale will not be confined to summer goods alone. We are bound to protect ourselves and our customers from OUT PRICES from any source or for any reason. This sale will therefore embrace the entire stock without exception, and the prices will be cut to cost. We have had a large trade this season and made a fair profit. We can afford to give away our profits for the next two weeks to secure a big trade and get rid of a lot of goods, and that's what we are bound to do. It will be no sleepy, half-hearted, namby-pamby, half-and-half, don't-care-whether-we-do-or-not sale. It's a case where prices are put so low as to awaken enthusiasm among the salesmen, the infection is caught by the purchasers, resulting in live business and quick exchange of goods for money, mutual happiness and satisfaction. Terms, as usual during cost sales, are cash. Large purchases, at exceedingly low prices (in many cases less than the cost of manufacture) have enabled us to supply you during the past two weeks with goods at prices which could not be competed with in this section, and yet yielded us a fair profit. What do you think they will be sold at, or the chances of others competing with us, now that our profits are whittled off them? Come and see, we have no room for a price-list, but every visitor will be given our demonstration of the fact, that good money can be saved on their purchases, of the genuineness of the sales, and the tangibility of the reductions.

It is with deep sorrow that the many friends of Miss Elsie Laughlin heard of her death at 4 o'clock last Thursday evening at 24th inst. Two weeks ago she was in the city for medical consultation and she hoped that if she had strength to get through the fever that her convalescence was assured, but on Saturday 10th inst. her illness took a fatal change and on the 24th she passed peacefully away, surrounded by the family and fortified by the rites of the Catholic Church.

She was the only daughter of a happy and united family, and her death is a sad blow to her parents, who in their affliction have the sincere sympathy of the whole community.

The funeral took place last Saturday at Napanee and was largely attended. The funeral was met at St. Patrick's church by the Rev. Father O'Brien, in the absence of Rev. Father McCarthy who was in Kingston at the annual retreat of the clergy. A requiem mass had been celebrated at 10.30 and the remains were interred in the Catholic Cemetery.

Miss Laughlin died in the 24th year of her age, and though young, had endeared herself to a large circle of relatives and friends who will keep her memory green as the years roll by.

Mr. G. Rightmyer is home from the Potter hospital, where he has been for the past five weeks getting his eyes treated. He is very much better and speaks in terms of the highest praise of the professor and would recommend her to any one similarly afflicted. J. W. Crawford is also home from the same institution and endorses what Mr. Rightmyer says in regard to the professor, and the kind and considerate treatment received while in attendance, at her private hospital, and recommends any one suffering from any eye trouble to go and see her.

We are now right in the midst of harvest, also berry picking, which is being indulged in by most of the inhabitants with considerable profit.

TYENIDINAGA RESERVE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Christen Miller, aged 50 years, died at the residence of her grandson, Joseph I. Brant, on Thursday morning. Her remains were followed to the grave at Christ Church cemetery by a large circle of friends on Tuesday.

A pretty fancy has been placed round the Kingston plot in Christ Church cemetery.

Hereditary Chief Joseph I. Brant desires us to say that no intoxicating drinks will be allowed to be present at the picnic to be held in the park on the 20th of August, but we fear that as one of the party expressed himself "we make it with no gathering without it" may make its appearance in two-legged pairs in which case it will be summarily ejected.

SHANNONVILLE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The funeral of M. B. Lake took place on Sunday last under the direction of the Masonic lodge. He was an interesting man and very highly respected. Consumption was the cause of his death. His wife and children have the sincere sympathy of all in their bereavement.

Rev. E. Dewar Lewis officiated at the funeral service which was attended by a large concourse of Masons from Belleville, Deseronto and other places.

Sacramental service was held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday last, but owing to the funeral there was not a very large attendance.

The revolution which occurred in Buenos Ayres is said to have had its origin in the dissatisfaction caused by the city not receiving its share of government appointments and similar favours. This speedily causing them to decay. In the interests of economy it would be well to empower Commissioner Harrigan to prevent any future infringement in this respect.

A bloody revolution occurred in Buenos Ayres, South America, last night, the result of the financial crisis produced by over speculation. The insurgents had the streets cleaned to last upon boulevard being kept below the level of the boardwalks. At present many are too high and air is prevented from passing under the boards. This speedily causing them to decay. In the interests of economy it would be well to empower Commissioner Harrigan to prevent any future infringement in this respect.

The Voters List of the municipality of the Town of Deseronto has been ready printed at the Town Office and will be ready for distribution in a few days.

East Hastings Protest.

A protest has been filed against the election of W. F. Hudson, M. P. for East Hastings, on the grounds of corrupt practices, impersonation, bribery, absentee votes, etc. Twenty-seven elections have been protested, but it is thought the greater proportion will be withdrawn before they reach the courts.

A Dangerous Bridge.

We are informed that the Sucker Creek bridge on the Boundary road is in a dangerous condition, the strings being rotten and the whole structure liable to collapse. People in that district do not attempt to pass over it but some stranger will attempt it some of these days: then serious results may be expected.

1000 Island Excursion.

Rev. D. O. Crowley has arranged for a cheap trip to the 1000 Islands per steamer Hero on Thursday, Aug. 14th. Boat leaves Deseronto at 8:15 a.m., Colon 8:30, Pictou 9:15. Tickets only 75 cents. Those wishing to do so can remain over Sunday and return on same boat Monday morning for 25 cents extra. Don't forget date and come along.

First Place.

It may be safely asserted that in no municipality in Canada is the vote polled at elections so large in proportion to names on the list as in Deseronto. At recent general elections the entire vote was practically brought out. It all counts for nothing as far as Deseronto is concerned. No caucus house, no post office, no bridge over the bay, nothing, nothing.

Huckleberries.

Mr. David Smith, of the Reserve, has already paid the first visit to the blue berry region of the Hald Mountain in the back country. He reports berries plentiful, though not so much as last year. The quality, however, is decidedly superior to what they have been for many years, as the large specimens which he has left at our office amply testify.

A Busy Contractor.

Mr. G. E. Clement, builder and contractor, is one of the many very busy men for whom Deseronto has gained such an enviable reputation. During the past five years he has built over fifty houses in Deseronto, besides attending to such heavy contracts as the joiner work of the high school, the renovation of the Methodist Church, the work on the McCullough Block, etc.

Watch For It.

A dangerous American counterfeit bill is in circulation. The bill is an imitation of the two dollar silver note. It purports to be of department series 1886, check letter B. 1863. The Hancock portrait is poorly executed and the color of the seal is a bright pink red, instead of a dark red of the genuine bill. It may also be detected by the fact that the "i" in "Register" is not dotted, nor is the "d" in "States" crossed. The bill is slightly smaller than the genuine one.

Casualties.

On Saturday Mr. J. D. Monaghan allowed his hand to slip on a saw which he was repairing in the Saw Mill. A tooth penetrated one of the arteries in his wrist which bled profusely, over a quart of blood being lost. Dr. Vandervoort dressed the wound and Mr. Monaghan was at work in an hour or two as if nothing had happened. On Monday Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsey, an aged woman 89 years of age, fell down and broke her arm near the wrist. Dr. Vandervoort reduced the fracture.

Eastern Press Association.

The meeting of the Eastern Press Association at Kingston on the 24th was very thinly attended. Only seven members being present. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, L. W. Shannon, Kingston; First Vice-President, J. C. Sanson, Belleville; Second Vice-President, J. A. McDonald, Arnprior; Secretary, Treasurer, G. McKinnon, Smith's Falls. Executive Committee, J. A. MacKenzie, Brockville; J. Maclean, Pictou; W. P. McEwan, Almonte; A. Gravelle, Renfrew; B. Lane, Winchester.

Express.

It would be an excellent plan for the local managers of the express companies to introduce the system which obtains in other towns of notifying people of the arrival of parcels. Sometimes the sender writes informing the consignee that he may expect a parcel and then he can be on the alert and secure it, but if that is not done it is only by chance that the parcel may be secured. We are quite well aware that the express companies care little for the convenience of the public, but the postage may make up some day and deprive them of their unjust monopoly.

Excursion to Rochester.

Rev. D. O. Crowley, of Newburgh, has arranged for a cheap trip to Rochester, N. Y., on Wednesday, August 6th. The stmr. Norseman, Capt. G. H. Nicholson, will leave Deseronto at 8 a.m.; Trenton 8, Brighton 8:15, Cobourg 7:45 and Cobourg 9:15. This trip will give us a chance to see the city of Rochester, and to see the place of starting; or it will give one, two or three days in Rochester, and return across in in a regular trip. Tickets only $2.00 from Belleville and Trenton, $1.50 from Brighton, etc. Good for four days. For information, write, Rev. D. O. Crowley, Newburgh.

The Deane's Ramble.

Mr. Wm. Deane and his party, including Miss Baird, Miss Davis, Misses Jessie and Fanny Richardson and Master Harry Richardson returned home on Saturday on the stmr. Alexandria from their three weeks' trip down the St. Lawrence. All the tourists had been thoroughly amused by the sun and sea air breezes and showed the effects of the good appetites gained by their splendid trip. They were all in excellent mood and enjoyed the enjoyment of their ramble and testify to Mr. Deane's capabilities as a cheerful and genial companion. The party visited every object of interest which was worth seeing. Mr. & Mrs. E. G. Scott and family, of Quebec, extended great kindness and hospitality to the party during their sojourn in Quebec, the ancient capital.

Midland Central Fair.

We have received from Mr. R. Meek, the Secretary, a copy of the prize list of the Midland Central Fair, which will be held at Kingston from Sept. 1st to Sept. 10th inclusive. The directors of the Midland Agricultural Association have devised liberal prizes and arranged many attractions in order to make the fair a success. In addition to other features a bench dog show will be held in connection with the fair on Sept. 2nd, 3rd and 4th and $700 in prizes will be offered in this department. It is supported by the business men of Kingston and other citizens of that city. The Midland Fair will prove one of the best which will be held in the province this year. We congratulate the Association on having such an energetic and capable secretary as Mr. Meek.

ROBERT N. BAYNE, Town Clerk, Deseronto.
Dated this 20th day of July, 1890.

TO-DAY, FRIDAY, THE FIRST OF AUGUST, P. SLAVEN & CO.

Will commence one of their old time clearing sales, when all the goods in the store will be marked right down in red ink to prices so low as to paralyze all previous records. We will offer the goods at prices that will knock all other sales cold and stiff, and don't you forget it. We will offer inducements that will bring the farmers in from their harvests; the builders will come down from the housetop; and mothers that are nursing their babies will hurry to the store to secure a share of the great bargains that we always offer on these occasions.

This language may seem like bunscombe to some; but we can assure you that we mean business. We are overloaded with goods and have a great many notes to meet in August, so we have determined to turn the goods into money if low prices will do it.

We could astonish you, reader, by publishing a list of the prices that we will offer, but the trouble would be that before you would get here some of those cheap lines would be sold out, and, unless you are more charitable than some people, you would say that we never had them; that we are only humbugs. We say, therefore, come to the store as soon as you can and see the goods, take them in your hand and examine them.

Our goods are always marked in plain figures—look at the price and we have no fear of the result. This sale is not advertised for the purpose of running off a few lines of summer goods only. The reduction will be general throughout the store. Stacks of goods will be sold at a discount of 25 per cent. Other piles will be sold at a discount of 33½ per cent., and a few goods will be sold at a discount of 50 per cent., while staple, ready-money goods, as we call them, will be sold at a discount of from 5 to 12½ per cent. But nothing will escape the slaughter!

The Terms, of course, will be STRICTLY CASH. We will send samples of goods to ladies living out of town, and any goods they order can be sent by mail at the rate of one cent per ounce to any place in Canada. The store will be kept open on Saturday and Wednesday evenings until 9 o'clock for the accommodation of our customers in the country.

A Dog With Modern Improvements.

A pair of well-to-do people who have been living at a hotel here since last autumn are planning to build for themselves a new home at their place in the country, says the Boston Transfer. They are extremely interested in their plans, which are hospitable as well as architectural. It is their intention to keep their house half filled with guests during the summer months that they live in their house—when they get their house. They are deaf to disqualifications in regard to servants' dislike for an overhauling house of guests, and both are firm in praise of the lovely knoll which they have chosen as a house site.

"But you ought to have a dog," said one of Mrs. X's friends, "if you are going to live in the country you will need a dog, and a big one."

"I mean to have a big dog," was Mrs. X's calm reply.

"But you know perfectly well that you are afraid of dogs, and would be scared by one more than any possible tramp or burglar would."

"That's true," calmly replied Mrs. X, "but my dog is to be a big brazen one. I'm going to have it made, and it is to have a photograph in its diaphragm, and I'm going to borrow one of the neighbor's dogs to howl into the photograph, and so I'll have it to howl nights, you see. Of course there'll be wires and an electric button to connect it with my room so I can regulate it."

Called Her Bluff.

Chippie little Della Fox, the soubrette of the Hopper Opera company, prides herself, says the New York Star, on the fact that she never allows anything, no matter how embarrassing, to disconcert her. A few afternoon ago, however, the cool little lady had an experience in which, as she expresses it, "her bluff was called and she had to admit defeat." She was walking on Broadway with a friend when they chanced to pass a young man who carried a light overcoat or his arm. Miss Fox carried an umbrella in her hand, and as she passed the young man she accidentally caught his overcoat with the handle of her umbrella. She turned round at once, and looking the young man in the face said, "I have caught your umbrella. You may have it if you want it." The young man was staggered for an instant, but he quickly controlled himself, and reaching out his hand said, "Thank you," with a polite bow, as he took the proffered umbrella and walked away with it. The next day a messenger-boy brought to the young man a note which, with a note which said: "I always call a bluff, no matter how small a hand I hold." The note was unsigned, and Miss Fox does not yet know whom the young man was.

The Cook Withdrew.

A lady living in a fashionable neighborhood in the northern part of the city secured a new cook the other day, says the Detroit Free Press, but the girl had not been in the house an hour when she asked for an interview, and said: "Madam, I think it best for me to withdraw and let you fill my place."
"Why? Is anything wrong?"
"Yes—your husband."
"But what of him?"
"It would be very embarrassing for me to continue to meet him."
"Explain yourself!"
"We were once engaged to be married. I found that he was unworthy of me, and so I gave him the slip."
"You—you did! Now get your bundle and go!" exclaimed the indignant lady.
"I simply withdrew, madam—withdraw for the sake of peace and harmony. I hope your husband is a better man than when I saw him the walk. Au revoir!"

A POWERFUL PAPER BY COUNT LEON TOLSTOI.

I have received, and still continue to receive, numbers of letters from persons who are perfect strangers to me asking me to state in plain and simple language my own views on the subject headed in the story.

COUNT LEON TOLSTOJ, entitled "The Kreutzer Sonata." With this request I shall now endeavor to comply.

My views on the question may be succinctly stated as follows: Without entering into details, it will be generally admitted that it is inaccurate in saying that many people confound in young men a course of conduct with regard to the other sex which is incompatible with strict morality, and that this dissoluteness is pardoned principally because of supposed physical necessities. Both parents and the Government, in consequence of this view, may be said to wink at profligacy and, even in the last resort, to encourage its practice. I am of opinion that this is not right.

It is not possible that the health of one class should necessitate the ruin of another, and in consequence it is our first duty to turn a deaf ear to such an essentially immoral doctrine, no matter how strongly society may have established or law protected it. Moreover, it needs to be fully recognized that men are rightly to be held responsible for the consequences of their acts, and that women are no longer to be visited upon the woman alone. She, who is too frequently the victim of man's selfishness, is no longer to bear the entire burden of a double sin.

It follows from this that it is the duty of unmarried men who do not wish to live a life of infamy to practice such continence in respect to all woman as they would were the male society in which they move made up only of fathers, mothers and sisters.

A more rational mode of life should be adopted, which would include abstinence on alcoholic drinks, from excess in eating and from flesh meats, on the one hand, and recourse to physical labor on the other. I am not speaking of gymnastics, or of any of those occupations which may be fitly described as paying at work; I mean the genuine toil that dignifies. No one need go far in search of proofs that this kind of abstemious living is not merely possible, but far less hurtful to health than excess. Hundreds of instances are known to every one. This is my first intention.

In the second place, I think that of late years, through various reasons into which need not enter, but amongst which the above-mentioned laxity of opinion in society and the frequent idealization of the subject of current literature and painting may be mentioned, conjugal infidelity has become common, and is considered less reprehensible. I am of opinion that this is not right.

The origin of this evil is two-fold. It is, in the first place, to a natural instinct, and, in the second, to the elevation of this instinct to a place to which it does not rightly belong. This being so, the evil can only be remedied by effecting a change in the views now in vogue about "falling in love" and all that this term implies, by educating men and women at home through family influence and example, and abroad, through means of healthy public opinion, to practice that abstinence which morality and Christianity alike enjoin and to see in their animal passion foes to be conquered rather than friends to be encouraged. This is my second contention.

In the third place, I am of opinion that another consequence of the false light in which 'falling in love' and what it leads to are viewed in our society is that the birth of children has lost its pristine significance, and that modern marriageers are conceived less and less from the point of view of the family. The child is no longer the center of the marriage doctrine, and the practices which result from them wreck not only the bodily but the spiritual health of the couple. The vigor of women, and for this reason pregnancy should be avoided. The remedy is to be found in that self-restraint which, rightly considered, is an essential element of man's duty and must be as fundamental upon him even before marriage. This is my third

On the fourth place, I am of opinion that children (who in our society are either neglected or enjoyments—an unlikely accident) are not to be considered as persons (in the maximum 1844-46 beforehand), merely an enjoyment of another person. The children are to be considered as a problem which they will come to be called to face and to solve, but solely with an eye to the place which they will occupy in the place of their parents. The consequences is that the children of human beings are brought up for all the world like the young of the animals. The children are to be brought up, not to train them to such work as is fitting of men and women, but to increase the number of men and women, and to make them clean, spruce, clean, well-fed and healthy. They pig their throats in all manner of food, and consume many a sweet, every day, and are made to learn their letters, and children of the lower orders differ in this respect from those of the well-to-do class in that the latter are brought up to work from sheer necessity, and not because their parents recognize work as a duty, and the children are brought up with a certain sensibility to engendered unmanly

Fashionable dress to-day, the course of loving, plays, music, dances, luscious food,
the elements of our modern life, in a word,
the pictures on the little boxes of sweet-scented up to the novels, the tale and the poem contribute to fan this sensuality into a strong continuing flame, with the result that sexual diseases have come to be the normal condition of the period of tender youth and then continue into the ripe age of full-blown manhood. And I am of the opinion that this is not right

It is high time it ceased. The children of human beings should not be brought up as if they were animals, and we should set up as disobject, and strive to obtain as the result of our labors something better and nobler than a well-dressed body. This is my fourth contention.

For the last place, I am of opinion that, owing to the exaggerated and erroneous significance attributed by our society to love and to the idealized state that accompany and succeed it, the best energies of our men and women are drawn forth and exhausted during the most promising period of life; those of the men in the work of looking for, choosing and winning the most desirable objects of love, for which purpose lying and fraud are held to be quite excusable; those of the women and girls in luring men and deceiving them into liaisons or marriages by the most excusable means conceivable as an instance of which the present fashions in evening dress

Here's a Sensible Suggestion for the Literary Aspirant:

I am very frequently asked whether the newspaper is the best starting point for young authors, and in this question lies, in nine cases out of ten, a grave misconception. Many young writers believe that work rejected by the monthly magazine will find a market with the daily newspaper. It seems to be taken for granted that the same degree

There is no necessary for newspaper work to be "creative" writing. "The newspaper does not have a day magazine," says the monthly, "is the general feeling, and hence the impression that ephemeral work will find a ready market with the newspaper."

For the past few years, the editor of the newspaper press of America for six or seven years, and I give young writers a leaf from my experience when I say to them: Do not allow yourself to believe that minor work will find a ready market with the newspaper. There is just as much demanded of a writer in the newspaper editorial office as in that of the monthly magazine. A writer commits the greatest mistake of her life when she writes for the newspaper as a graduating school to the magazine. The same standard of grammar and expression set by the magazine holds good with news-

Where the newspaper offers to the young writer an advantage over the magazine is in its wider field and its larger capacity. In publishing thirty times against the single issue of a magazine, the newspaper naturally absorbs more material, and a writer's chances are correspondingly better. Then, too, subjects which are not of the range of the magazine fall directly within the scope of the newspaper. This is specially true of timely articles. The magazines of to-day, with their large circulations and the necessary slower process of printing, are prepared so far in advance as to make it impossible for them to get close enough to timely happenings to make their discussion of them fresh and interesting. With newspapers this is, of course, different, and it is precisely in its ability to treat of what is latest and freshest where lies its strength, and in these respects the field is necessarily broadened to the writer.

But bear in mind, this advantage is only one of greater capacity, not of less requirement. Disappointment can be no more certain than when a manuscript is sent to a newspaper editor with the belief that he is less critical or that his constituency is less exacting than in the case of the monthly magazine.—Edward W. Bok.

A Dry Niagara.
It seems almost incredible that at one time in its history the greatest and most wonderful waterfall in the world actually ran dry. Nevertheless, it is an established fact that this occurred on March 29, 1848, and for a

To thoroughly appreciate this astonishing phenomenon, it should be remembered that the estimated average amount of water passing over these falls is 502,590 tons per minute.

The winter of that year had been an exceptionally severe one, and ice of unusual thickness had formed on Lake Erie. The warmer spring rains loosened this congelated mass and on the day in question a brisk east wind drove the ice far up into the lake. About sunset the wind suddenly veered around and blew a heavy gale from the west. This naturally turned the ice in its course and, bringing it down to the mouth of the Niagara river, piled it up in a solid, impenetrable wall.

So closely was it packed and so great was its force that in a short time the outlet to the lake was completely choked up, and little or

The water could possibly escape. In a very short space of time the water below this frozen barrier passed over the falls, and the next morning the people residing in the neighborhood were treated to a most extraordinary spectacle.

The roaring, tumbling rapids above the falls were almost obliterated and nothing but the cold black rocks were visible in all directions. The news quickly spread, and crowds of spectators flocked to view the scene, the banks on each side of the river being lined with people during the whole day. At last there came a break in the ice; it was released from its restraint, the pent-up wall of water rushed downward, and Niagara was itself again.—Golden Days

Country House Visiting for Pleasure—A

There are degrees in visiting, from very smart country house parties to parties not so smart, and parties that are not at all smart, in which the guests are additions to the family circle, if not acquisitions, and visits that are pail to host and hostess in the truest sense of the word, in which the one visitor is asked for a long visit, and not for a three or four days, but for a ten days' one. Thus numerous are the visits paid.

Visitors are asked that they may enjoy the beauty of the country and the company of their friends and all the amusements that the country offers in the way of tennis, croquet, reading, bazaar, flower shows, picnics, and all the pleasures of these villages are perhaps the pleasantest of any. This is not at all important, but in reality of very little importance; the ladies do not dress "à la" each other. There is little time for donning tea gowns, and the dress put on in the morning is pretty enough and good enough for the day. The ladies are not exchanged for something equally simple which does not resemble a ball gown in the very least. To live in the open air all day is the great secret of enjoyment, and to have a house as possible, and to work. To have tea out of doors, to go to work, to play tennis, to row on the river, are the pleasant ways of passing the time.

Young ladies are frequently asked on their part to be the parents of two weeks without their parents. When they are brought in to the house the mistress never finds the presence of her visitor a tax; but it is often otherwise when a young lady allows her hostess to feel that she is a burden. It is for amusement during the whole of the visit, and it has not tact enough to relieve her of the presence during the calls of her most intimate friends.

The Benefit of Lightning Rods.

In the case of steep roofs, in which the charged cloud descending from the upper regions of the air, or approaching from a distance, might inflict serious injury upon an unprotected building, a well-designed and properly placed lightning rod is a most absolute safeguard. In a case of "impulsive" lightning, the rod may often serve in bearing to the brunt of the discharge, though sometimes the lightning will take no notice whatever of it, striking the building and altogether neglect the rod; and it is even possible that a high rod might attract a destructive discharge, which otherwise would not have occurred at all. Although, therefore, a lightning rod is in many cases, probably in a very large majority, of the greatest service, it cannot be depended upon as affording perfect immunity from risk; and the assumption which has universally been made by the "older electricians" that damage by lightning is in itself conclusive evidence of some imperfection in the conductor, is an unfounded one.—Professor Bidwell in Nature.

 Real this extract from the scientific papers of Great Britain and Europe :

The four greatest medical centres of the world are London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. These cities have immense hospitals teeming with suffering humanity, and the institutions are under the charge of the most renowned physicians of the world. These practitioners have, at their disposal, the most extensive medical knowledge and experience. With a view of making this experience available to the public the Hospital Management Co. of Great Europe secured the prescriptions of these hospitals, prepared the specific medicines, and would cost from $25 to $100 to secure the attention of their distinguished originators, yet in this way their prepared specific are offered at the price of the cheap patent medicines that flood the market and absurdly claim to cure every ailment from which human beings suffer.

THE RATHBUN COMPANY.

Large reports from different parts of the province are not as encouraging as might be desired.

In the ranks of the Salvation Army leading on Saturday, were 1,014 officers with 394 corps and outposts.

Miss Lena Walker contributed an excellent sermon in the morning service in the Church of the Redeemer last Sabbath.

Mrs. Aubin and Miss Jennie Graham, of Stirling, arrived on Tuesday and are the guests of Mr. Alice Hunt, Mill street.

The "Hero" carried a very large excursion party from Belleville and other parts to Kingston and the Thousand Islands on Wednesday. The trip was greatly enjoyed.

Messrs. Wm. Hinchang, of Oswego, and W. C. B. Rathbun, of Bay View Ranch, enjoyed a fishing trip to Cross Lake, etc., in the back country and report great success.

The trip to the 1000 Islands by str. Hero on Wednesday, August 6, will undoubtedly be one of the most attractive of the season.

Only 75 cents for the round trip, and the trip is said to be an arrangement has been perfected by which Mr. Allan Gilmore, of Ottawa, will remove to Trenton and go into partnership with Mr. David Gilmore.

Mr. James Semmich has moved his shop and residence to his own property on Brant street where he carries on a grocery business and where he hopes to receive a fair share of public patronage.

Mr. Wm. Patterson is in town this week renewing old associations. During their stay
they were the guests of Mr. D. G. Warrman.
Mr. Patterson occupies his western home.

Fishermen are dying in large numbers at Red Bay, Labrador, from an outbreak of diphtheria. These Labrador fishermen should all be removed from those sterile coasts. Their lives appear to be a continued
state of appalling misery and starvation.

Sagami, Mich., has been visited by a most destructive fire which spread over an acre
three quarters of a mile long by an eighth of a mile wide and destroyed property of the value of $75,000. The principal losses are the Owen Hutchinson Lumber Co., John G.
Owen, H. B. Nelson & Co., J. J. Winson,
Brown & Ryan, etc.

A party consisting of Mr. & Mrs. F. S.
Rathbun, Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Hinchang, J. S.
Sloan, Miss Morphy, Miss Rathbun,
Miss Jennie Graham, Miss Edith Hinchang,
Miss Bunella Rathbun, Messrs. F. G. B.
Allen, and E. Walter Rathbun enjoyed a pleasant trip to the Sandbanks on Monday last.

Mr. J. F. Chapman, who is so soon to leave Deseronto, has always been a great favorite with the young people and in social circles. An excursion in his honor was made last Friday evening to Glenora.

The sail was enjoyed by the large company
present and the unqualified pleasure was passed at the beautiful resort down the bay.

How would you feel to work for several days in succession until sweating from every pore and then be denied the privilege of taking a bath or changing clothes? And yet that is just about the way a good many hours are treated, and their feelings must be something like ours would be under the circumstances. Add to the sweat a mixture of dust and it becomes much worse.

The Globe of Wednesday had an interesting account of the oldest citizen of Toronto.
His name is John M. Tinsley and he is 107
years of age, having been born in Richmond, Virginia, July 4th, in 1783. Mr. Tinsley is still vigorous, is partly of negro blood, his father having been an Irishman
and his mother a mulatto. He remembers having seen Washington and several other
of the revolutionary leaders.

The weather still continues hot and dry and rain is greatly needed all over this district. There have been a few very light showers but their effects were not very appreciable. The following are the maximum readings of the thermometer during the past week: Friday, July 31st, 83°; Saturday,
August 1st, 83°; Sunday, 83°; Monday, 83°;
Tuesday, 83°; Wednesday, 83°; Thursday,
83°; Friday, 83°.

No canvassing will be allowed at the Roman Catholic Bazaar this evening, so that young men can attend without being persecuted by fair young ladies as is too often the case. The drawing in the different events will take place at 7 p. m. Refreshments including cake and coffee, will be served on the grounds. The ladies will leave nothing undone to please all their customers. Remember the place, east of the Smith Block, Main street.

Changes in the Staff.
Mr. J. F. Stokes, who has for so many years satisfactorily filled the position of paymaster for the Rathbun Company, has resigned with the intention of removing to Toronto. He is succeeded by Mr. Thomas
E. Culhane, of the City of Belleville. Mr.
G. H. Kirkpatrick of the Central office will assist Mr. Culhane, and Mr. Tobias Butler, Jr., will succeed Mr. Kirkpatrick in the mailing department of the general office.
Mr. J. F. Chapman of the Bay of Quinte Railway and Deseronto Navigation Company
office removes next week to Deseronto and enter upon similar position in the office of the Thousand Islands Railway Co. He is succeeded by Mr. Edward Landon, late of the railway office in Deseronto.

Coming Events.
Do you want to have a delightful trip
among the 1000 Islands? If so go on the Hero's excursion on Wednesday next,
August 6th. There will be a jolly party from Napanee on board and you can rely on having a good time. The Hero will leave Napanee at 7 a. m. sharp, and Deseronto at eight o'clock, calling at Bay ports, if flagged.
The tickets are only seventy five cents and for that small sum you can go to either Kingston, Wolfe Island, or Alexandria Bay.
The sail down through fairly land cannot be surpassed. On this trip the Hero will go down the Chippewa Channel and return by the American, passing the Pullman, Warner and other summer palaces. A delightful outing on the water; an hour and a half on the Hero, a day on the Hero, a day on the scenery on the St. Lawrence and home by moonlight, all for seventy five cents. Don't miss this trip.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.
The music at the annual service on Wednesday evening last was pleasingly rendered by a small contingent from the S. S. choir, under the direction of Mr. Fowkes. Miss Ella Evans acted as organist on the occasion. The choir sang the usual hymns and trained S. S. choir assisted regularly at the week day service.

On Sunday last the Rector officiated in the parish of Adolphustown.

Next Sunday is the ninth Sunday after Trinity and being the first Sunday in the month, Holy Communion will be celebrated at mid day service.

A very general and wide spread interest is being taken in the Sunday school annual convention, which (weather permitting) will be held, as stated last week, on Friday next
the 8th inst., at "Prinny's Cove", on the S.
Frederickburg shore some 10 miles from Belleville. The excursion will leave the dock, per steamer Hero, at 7.30 a. m. (sharp). Families are expected to come provided with camp gear, and the most refreshments will be offered for sale on the grounds. The beauty of the place selected,
the extended sail, together with the exceedingly low fare of the excursion (return) to all (outside of the school), will doubtless attract a large number of pleasure-seekers.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.
The office of the Big Store of the Rathbun Company was the scene of a pleasing event
on the afternoon of Thursday, July 31st, when Mr. J. F. Stokes who has severed his connection with the Company was presented with an elegant gold headed cane by the staff of the store. The address which is submitted refers to the great regret felt at Mr. Stokes' departure and expresses the hope that his associations with the employes will be remembered to the end of his life and pleasure. The address was read by Mr. E.
W. Scott, and Mr. Stokes, who was taken by surprise, made a suitable reply.

The excursion to the south end of the mill dam, on the 12th inst., was 30 links to the concession road allowance between the 5th and 6th concessions of Richmond then S. 81° 6' W. mag. 4 chains 90 links to the place of beginning containing 16 acres more or less reserving however these 16
links to the north end of the road on the south side of the pond for one Robert Winters. Also all privileges and rights of flowing water in the salmon river and upon lot number 2 in the said 6th concession of Richmond held by one James B. Gordon.

This property is well situated in the midst of a good agricultural country where the Salmon River is crossed by the town line between the Townships of Richmond and Trenton. The tract consists of about 15 acres of land on which there is an excellent water power on the Salmon River with a small grain saw mill, two frame dwellings, a house, frame stable and frame blacksmith's shop.

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

CHAPTER XVII.

"I dare not! Oh, I dare not!"
"But it is only our power."
"And a while since, I go."
"Anywhere rather than remain here."
Oh, my mistress, if you stay here you know the fate which awaits you. There is no other means of escape from the wicked duke's power."

"And I must thus cast myself among strangers—lose all of earth—"

"Hold, Rosalind. By St. Paul! there is surely one in Moscow who will help you. Let us go to the Emperor. Oh, if he be the man I have heard he will surely listen!"

"Ah, Zensib! the duke is high in power, and his influence is great at court. Peter would not dare to thwart him."

"It may be so, but I do not believe it. And yet, my mistress, just think of it. At present, how you live in that respect, moment, how you live in that respect, with all its pains and sorrows, and with its most exquisite tortures, holding nothing for you within the bounds of possibility than to become the duke's wife. If there were but one chance in a thousand you had better try it. Remember—you can not possibly lose anything; but the chances are for you. Let us go to the Emperor."

"But how, Zensib?"

"This evening—after the darkness of night has gathered over the city—let us go. I tell you I do not believe the Emperor will deliberately utter a great wrong to be done for the sake of pacifying the duke. He is more noble independent than that."

The young countess did not answer at once. She pressed her small white hand hard upon her brow, and thus she remained for some time buried in profound thought. At length she raised her head, and the fire of determination was in her eyes.

"I will go," she said. "I will go to the Emperor. He will help me if he has a human heart."

"You have one satisfaction, my mistress: he can not harm you."

"Can not?"

"I mean that you can but be made to marry with Olga; and all other harm would be as nothing compared with that."

"Aye—you are right, Zensib. We will go this very night."

The more Rosalind pondered upon this new resolve the more hope she derived from it. Ere long she conversed freely with her attendant, and at times that old smile would struggle for a moment upon her face. Yet she had gloomy moments, too. Her fear was too deeply fixed to be swept away so easily.

The afternoon passed away, and as the shades of night gathered over the great city the two girls were still. Zensib gathered together such articles of clothing as would be needed, and then proceeded to prepare her mistress for the adventure.

"Fear not," she said, as she drew on Rosalind's robe of fur, "for there can be no danger more than that we flee from. Try only to remember that you flee from the duke's foul embrace!"

This served to nerve the fair young countess up to the task, and her frame ceased its trembling.

"I shall not falter now," she said. "But shall we find the Emperor at this late hour?"

"Bless me, 'tis not late. But even if we do not see him to-night we can do it in the morning. We shall find plenty in the imperial palace who will shelter us till then."

The girls were now ready, and all that remained was to steal into their strange mission. With noiseless steps they left the apartment where they had dressed and proceeded along the corridor to the great staircase. Zensib knew there would be less danger there than to go down the other way among the servants. Having descended these stairs they came to the great hall which opened out into the saloons. They took the former course, and were soon in the court. The only trouble now was in passing the porter's lodge at the gate, for they knew the great gate was not open, and to gain the street they must pass through the room where the porter always stayed. Zensib went ahead and looked in. The porter sat by the fire playing with his dog.

"My mistress," whispered the girl, as she came back, "old John is in the lodge, and we need have no fear. He is a simple, good-natured fellow, and I am sure I can get by him. Do you go in advance—cover up your face—don't look at him; and be sure you don't tremble. Leave it all to me. Remember now, you have—"

"Fear not, Zensib. Go on."

So on they went, and when they reached the lodge Rosalind went in first and stood by the wicket, while Zensib followed, and opened the door that looked into the open street.

"Good John," she uttered, in anxious tones, "come and open the wicket for me quick. My good mistress is very ill, and Tilda and I are going for the doctor. Come—be quick."

"Has your don't some of the men go?" asked John, as he started up and forced his dog back.

"Because 'twould take them longer to do than I can do. I don't detain you. We shall be gone long."

The honest porter had orders not to allow the countess to pass, but he thought not of that now. He had known the gentle girl from a child, and so well did he love her that he might not have stopped her even had he known she was then waiting to pass. At all events, he could not refuse the present request, so he came out and opened the wicket, without further question, and the girls passed through.

"Now—now," uttered Zensib, in nervous haste, "are clear of the palace. Here is the street. Our walk is not long. Rosalind answered not, but drawing her robe more closely about her to keep out the cold, hitting with, she hastened along by the side of her companion. Hope was now alive within her. She turned one glance behind her, and she could see the light which she had left burning in her chamber. It seemed at that moment to be the fiery eyes of a demon gazing after her, and instinctively she quickened her pace.

Twice during the day did the Duke of Tula call at the imperial palace without being able to find the Emperor; but in the evening he was more fortunate. The Emperor was at home. The duke was admitted at once to his presence in the study.

"Well, my lord duke," said Peter, as Olga approached; "what business calls you from home at this hour?"

"Business of importance, sire. Business of less moment to me than to the state."

"The same, sire. Have you heard from him since?"

"Sire," commenced the duke, "you remember the gun-maker who was before you not long since?"

"Ah—yes. The one who took my Greek's sword from him."

"The same, sire. Have you heard from him since?"

"By my soul, Olga, I had well-nigh forgotten the fellow. Yes, yes—I remember him well now. He was a right stout knave."

"Aye—and a dangerous one, too, sire. A dangerous man," said the duke, with a dubious shake of the head.

"Ah—what has he done?"

"Why he has been engaged in various robberies to my certain knowledge; and only a few evenings since he knocked down one of our holy priests, and robbed him of all he had. He is at the head of a numerous band of desperadoes."

"Is it possible?"

"By St. Paul! I should not have believed this."

"Nor would I have believed it, sire, had I not received proofs not to be questioned. Is, as my duty, have long been anxious to ferret out this gang of robbers."

"But I have never heard of them, Olga," interrupted Peter.

"Ah, sire, because I gave direction that you should not be troubled with the affair. But I have them now. It is only last evening that I got a clue upon the river, where in an old building near the river, here in the Kremlin, and this same Rurik Nevel was with them. But he made his escape."

"I do remember me now that the fellow had a bold bearing, and a fearless look," said the Emperor, "and he said, 'if such a man turns villain there must be danger to the state.'"

"Aye, sire—you speak truly. And now with your order I can apprehend the fellow at once."

"I can send and have it done my dear duke."

"For your officers may not find him. I know where he is, and can have him taken at once. He has several hiding places."

"Well—then you might do the work with more advantage."

"Aye—and I can have him tried and disposed of without further trouble to you, sire."

"No, no. I wish to see him," returned the Emperor. "I will give you the necessary order, and you may bring him here."

Peter then turned to his secretary, and bade him fill an order for Rurik Nevel's arrest. The stout master-at-arms looked on with a troubled countenance, and his glances toward the duke were anything but loving. He did not seem to relish the business at all, and the expression of his countenance would seem to indicate that he did not believe all that the duke had said.

However, the order was soon made out and in the duke's possession.

"Remember," said Peter, "you will bring him before me."

"You shall be obeyed, sire."

If the Emperor did not notice the strange, dark look of the duke as he turned away, the Greek did; and he fancied, too, that he knew what it meant. But he said nothing then.

Olga bowed low as she clutched the order, and having once promised obedience, she hurried from the imperial presence. As he passed out through the wide court he walked slowly and thoughtfully, and with his head bowed; but soon he started up, his hands came together with an emphatic movement, and he moved on more quickly than he had gained the street, and approached a small court within the walls of the Kremlin, where he stopped. In a few moments more a man came out from the inn, and as soon as he had satisfied himself that the newcomer was the duke he spoke.

"Olga—is it you?"

"It needed but a single glance in the dim starlight to recognize the form of the hump-backed priest. He walked quickly to where the duke stood, and the two moved off together.

"New what luck?" Savatano asked, as they gained the street once more.

"Good—as good as I could ever hope," returned the duke. "I have the power for arresting the gun-maker."

"I guarded—kill him—and then see the Emperor how it happened. What think you?"

"Why," returned the priest, with a wicked chuckle, "I can only say that Master Nevel is done for—he is a dead man."

"Exactly. Nothing could be better—nothing."

After the explanation of this foolish, idiotic scheme, the two walked on some distance in silence.

"Sup," uttered the duke, catching his companion by the arm. "There come two persons this way. We must not meet them. Here—into this passage—quick!"

It was a narrow, dark passage leading to the next street into which the duke dragged his companion, and here he meant to remain until the two persons had passed. The fact was, the duke did not wish to be seen with the priest at that hour in the street, and it was no matter of surprise that he should at that moment have been influenced by guilty fear. The two pedestrians came on, and passed the spot where the men stood. They were females, and one of them the priest saw in the face. The features were well upturned to the starlight, and he recognized them. He caught the duke quickly and nervously by the arm.

"By the host of heaven!" he whispered, "twice the countess!"

"But surely," said Olga, "I have seen you before. You are sure as death?"

"Then come—quick!"

Savatano understood the meaning of this, and he followed the duke quickly out. A few words Olga reached the females, and one of them he caught by the arm. She uttered a sharp cry, and as she turned her face up she revealed the fair features of the Countess Rosalind Valdiva. The priest had no need to stop the other girl, for she stopped of her own accord as soon as she found that her mistress was captured.

"Aha!" Olga uttered, when he saw that pale face. "What now, sire? Where are you bound at this uncanny hour?"

"Oh, God! It was all the poor girl could utter. She saw the dark face of her hated and feared guardian, and the last glimmer of hope faded from her soul."

"By my soul," the duke resumed, fastening his grips surely upon the maiden's arm, "it is fortunate I have found you, for you might have fallen into different claws."

At first Rosalind looked of struggling for escape, but she felt the strong grips upon her arm, and she knew that such a movement could only result in her own harm.

"Say," repeated the duke, "were you not bound for the palace?"

"Aye, proud duke, I was," the countess replied, gazing up into the man's face. "I was trying to escape from your accused power!"

"Aha! But come—well turn towards home. You'll be better off there. And this is our little Zensib, is it?"

The attendant looked up, but she made no reply. Then Olga turned to the priest.

"Savatano, hurry off your men in the morning, and then come to me. I'll have work for you to-morrow. By Saint Paul! the work delays no longer!"

And then, with a sinking, breaking heart, Rosalind Valdiva was led back towards the dual palace.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Rurik Nevel dreamed that he was a great general, and that he was upon the eve of an engagement. He gained a view of the commander of the opposing army, and he saw that it was the Duke of Tula. Yet the duke had an enormous hump upon his back, and instead of the usual uniform he wore the garb of a priest. This was very strange—at least so ran Rurik's thoughts in the dream. Soon the engagement commenced, and the loud-mouthed artillery opened its thunder. The din was deafening and strange, and Rurik shouted in vain to his aids, for the roar of cannon drowned his words.

Direct from his lips. Louder and more loud grew the crash, and finally Rurik started for the charge. His horse was shot under him, and with a quick leap he reached his feet.

"Rurik! Rurik! My master!"

Slowly the youth opened his eyes, and he found that he was in the night clothes. He gazed about him, and found that he had leaped from his bed, and now stood shivering upon the floor.

"Don't you hear that racket at the door?" asked Paul.

"What? Ha—there is some one knocking," Rurik uttered, as he heard the sound.

"And have you not heard it before?"

"No."

"Why did you leap up thus?"

"I was dreaming."

"I thought 'twas the noise below. Why—they're been making a perfect thunder of noise down there. Shall I go down?"

"Yes, go, Paul; and I will dress as soon as possible. What time is it?"

"It must be near daybreak."

And thus speaking Paul turned and went to his own room, where he threw on an outer garment, and then he went down. As the duke found a stout man wrapped up in furs, while close by stood a sledge with two horses attached to it. In the east the golden tints of morn were already visible.

"A gun-maker, named Nevel, lives here, does he not?" asked the applicant, after having first made some passing remark on the trouble he had in starting some one up.

Paul feared that there might be something out of the way, but he dared not tell a falsehood where he could not possibly be of any use, so he answered in the affirmative.

"I should say so; but, early or late, you are welcome."

"Thank you. But we must not spend much time here now. My sledge is here at your door, and I wish you to accompany me."

"But wherefore is this?" asked the youth in surprise. "What has happened now?"

"I will tell you. Last night Olga, the duke's daughter, was here. I had just been giving his majesty some exercise at the sword, I was present at the interview. The duke wished for power to arrest you; and in explanation of the request he stated that you were at the head of a band of robbers here in the city, and that you had already committed several robberies. I need not tell you all he said—but he made you out to be a most unmitigated villain, and with this the Emperor granted his request. Olga wished for power to execute you at once, but Peter would not go so far as that. He gave the power to arrest, but ordered the duke to bring you before him."

Rurik stood for a few moments like one confounded.

"Then he must carry me to the Emperor," he said, at length.

"But surely," said Olga, with a dubious shake of the head, "he need not see you. I saw a look upon his face when he turned away that meant more than he dared to speak. As sure as fate he never means that you shall see the Emperor. I know it—I feel it in my very eyes."

"Will he be likely to obey the order?"

"Yes, for he hopes to escape by falsehood. How easy for him to swear that he had to kill you to take you."

"I see—I see," uttered Rurik.

"Then come with me."

"Did the Emperor send you?"

"No, but I take the responsibility. I will take you to the Emperor. He will see the duke's hiring will be here before long. Trust to me and all shall be well."

Rurik pondered a few moments, and he saw that his friend was right.

"Let me go and see my mother," he said, and then he will go with you."

"But surely," urged the Greek, "for the duke's men may be here soon, and I do not wish them to see you. And—tell your mother to inform whoever may call that she knows not where you are gone, but that you will be back at night."

The youth nodded assent, and then went into his mother's room, where he explained how what had happened and what he was about to do.

"And how long these things be," said the mother uttered, gazing eagerly upon her son.

"Not long," returned Rurik. "I may do much towards settling the matter to-day. But fear not, for I am now safe, and shall be until I am again home."

The widow promised all that her son asked, and some assurance that all her son would be left with the duty of attending to those who might come for Rurik, though they might see the widow if they persisted. The boy promised to tell all that asked for his master that he was gone away on business, and would not return till evening.

The mother came out before Rurik was ready to start, and her examination of the Greek's countenance seemed to be satisfactory, for the anxious look left her face, and she looked upon the visitor kindly.

As Rurik entered the sledge the dawn of day was just appearing in the east, and the stars were pale in the sky. The Greek did not take the direct road to the Kremlin, but struck off to the westward, and so entered by the Neglinna.

An hour later a party of five men drove up to the gun-maker's cot. They were dark, and dressed in black, and murder was plainly stamped upon their faces. They entered the dwelling, but they found not their prey. They stormed and swore, but to no purpose, and when they were convinced that the gun-maker was not there they went away.

An hour later still, and another party drove up to the same cot. It consisted of two men in a sledge, one of whom was Valdimir the monk. The fat, mystic man entered the cot, and there he remained for some time. When he came out the widow and Paul accompanied him; and they all got into the sledge and drove off together.

What did it mean?

It was noon. The proud duke was once more alone in his private room, and he was pacing uneasily to and fro. There was a cloud upon his brow, and trouble in his soul. His lips were firmly set, and his eyes were turned inward, as if he were trying to himself, and when he did so his hands would work nervously and emphatically. He looked often at his watch, and often he stopped near the door and hearkened.

At length came that well-known shuffling, unobtrusive, but not less sure, tread. He opened his door, and the dark priest glided in.

"Ha, Savatano, I've waited for you," the duke uttered sinking into a chair, for the nervous walking had made him weary.

"Now tell me the work is done. Oh, for God's sake don't let me again fall ill!"

"Aha, my lord—"

"Hold, Savatano! By the host of hosts, you are not going to tell me of failure?"

"Not really a failure, my lord. But our men did not find the gun-maker at home. He had gone when we got there, and no one knew where."

"No one knew? Did not his mother know?"

"There is no fear of that, my lord. I will see that he is apprehended as soon as he returns."

"Right, Savatano—right! And now to the other matter. I am to be married this afternoon!"

"No—no soon!"

"You waste no more time. What is the use?"

"None, my lord—none at all."

"Then you must remain, for the ceremony shall be performed as soon as possible."

"And does the countess know of your determination?"

"Yes. She knew it ere she retired last night. I told her she should not escape again till she could carry my name with her. By the mass, sir, she sealed her own doom. Ha, ha—the Duke of Tula will have his coffers filled again. Money must come somehow, and how else so easily as this?"

"Sure enough," returned the priest, with that old coarse, wicked smile. "Sure enough, my lord."

"In no way, sir. I'll put the sledge upon that budget, and stamp it—mine! So here you remain until I am married. To-day—until that ceremony is performed, I am not sure; but to-morrow they cannot harm me. Oh—he shall be mine Savatano. To-day she is my wife—to-morrow she shares my bed."

"To-morrow—between heaven and earth and hell combined cannot undo the work. I have waited long enough. I have worked and schemed, and have puzzled my brain to one great purpose; and yet each step I had marked out has failed me. Damnable lives—the gun-maker and the Countess Rosalind!—but I, too, live! Ha—I live, Savatano; and now the work shall be done as it might have been at first had I been so disposed."

The duke had arisen to his feet while speaking thus, his manner had been frantic and excited. As he ceased speaking he sank back into his chair and gazed at the priest with a look of intense scorn. Every nerve and muscle was in action, and a fierce determination was in his soul.

There is one more scene in the dual palace, and it goes on at the very time while the duke and his tool are together.

Valdimir the monk was in the chamber of the countess, and the fair occupant and her maid were there with him.

"And you are sure he means to make you his wife to-day?" said the monk, in continuation of a conversation which had been going on for some moments—"that he will have the ceremony performed whether you consent or not?"

"Yes, sir," the countess murmured. She gazed into the strange man's face a few moments after she had spoken, and then, starting quickly, she threw herself upon her knees before him.

"Oh!" she cried, with her clasped hands raised towards heaven, "can you not help me in this bitter moment? Do not say no. Oh, I know you have some strange power—and you may help me. You cannot know the misery I suffer. Oh, earth has no pang more cruel! In all the long catalogue of woes there is nothing more bitter! Sir—" and the maiden raised her hands to her face, and she uttered a low, broken cry. "Sooner than that man's wife I would with my own hand let my life-blood out were not the act a sin against my God! But you may help me."

"Alas, lady, I cannot assure you now."

"Oh—ay—not so. You can help me now from here—yes, you can find some place where my days can be spent in safety from this great evil."

"But how can I help you, lady?"

"Because you know some secret entrance to the palace. You know some secret passage, else you would not be here now."

"True," the monk replied, in a perplexed way, "I am, and by that shall I return; but I cannot convey you away thus. I am sorry that."

The monk stopped here, for at that moment a heavy footfall sounded without. He had started up from his seat when the door opened, and the duke had entered. He looked at the monk with a low, quick cry, and sank down. She would have sunk to the floor had not Zensib caught her and bore her to the couch.

The monk stood erect, with his arms folded across his breast, but his right hand was hidden within the folds of his habit. The duke started back like one thunder-struck, and it was some moments ere he could gain the power of speech. He turned first as pale as death, and then the blood mounted high, fiercely to his brow.

"By the living God!" he gasped, in a hoarse, broken tone, "how dare you here?"

"To learn of your wickedness, Duke of Tula," calmly responded Valdimir.

"Ha! do you heard me in my very palace, dog? But you have ventured here once too often. As sure as there is life in me you go not hence alive!"

"Hold, Olga!" spoke the monk—and so strange and powerful was the tone that, though the duke had turned towards the door, yet he stopped. "This lady tells me you mean to make her your wife. Is it so?"

"Oh, accused monk! Who gave thee right to question me?"

"By my soul, proud duke, you shall know that anon. But listen: if you force this lady to that thing you do it at your peril! You had better seek the fabled palace of the gods, and drink and be a dog, than do that thing!"

The duke, now nearly blind with passion; "you do not hence alive—What he, there! I thought, I say—Zensib, pull that lord—quick!—Back, monk! you pass not here alive—What! Without there?"

"Hush, Olga!" spoke the monk, as calmly as before, at the same time drawing a heavy pistol from his bosom and cocking it. "I would shoot you as I would a dog! Offer me one motion of impediment to my passage, and you die on the instant!"

"Out dogs!" the mad man shouted, "and stop that monk from leaving the palace. Kill him—you have my orders, and I am alone responsible!"

Thus speaking the duke rushed from the apartment to start up more of his household. First to the gate of the court he went, but the monk was not there, nor had he been there. Then he rushed to the postern, but that was locked, and the snow was untroubled before him. He returned to the hall, and one by one the servants came back from the search.

No monk could be found!

At first Olga was tempted to believe that her servants deceived him; but he quickly set that thought aside, for he could see by their countenances that they were as much astonished as he. The search was renewed, but the strange man was not to be found. There was some wonder, and some uneasiness.

TO-DAY, FRIDAY, THE FIRST OF AUGUST,

P. SLAVEN & CO.

Will commence one of their old time clearing sales, when all the goods in the store will be marked right down in red ink to prices so low as to paralyze all previous records. We will offer the goods at prices that will knock all other sales cold and stiff, and don't you forget it. We will offer inducements that will bring the farmers in from their harvests; the builders will come down from the housetop; and mothers that are nursing their babies will hurry to the store to secure a share of the great bargains that we always offer on these occasions.

This language may seem like buncombe to some; but we can assure you that we mean business. We are overloaded with goods and have a great many notes to meet in August, so we have determined to turn the goods into money if low prices will do it.

We could astonish you, reader, by publishing a list of the prices that we will offer, but the trouble would be that before you would get here some of those cheap lines would be sold out, and, unless you are more charitable than some people, you would say that we never had them; that we are only humbugs. We say, therefore, come to the store as soon as you can and see the goods, take them in your hand and examine them.

Our goods are always marked in plain figures—look at the price and we have no fear of the result. This sale is not advertised for the purpose of running off a few lines of summer goods only. The reduction will be general throughout the store. Stacks of goods will be sold at a discount of 25 per cent. Other piles will be sold at a discount of 33½ per cent., and a few goods will be sold at a discount of 50 per cent., while staple, ready-money goods, as we call them, will be sold at a discount of from 5 to 12½ per cent. But nothing will escape the slaughter!

The Terms, of course, will be STRICTLY CASH. We will send samples of goods to ladies living out of town, and any goods they order can be sent by mail at the rate of one cent per ounce to any place in Canada. The store will be kept open on Saturday and Wednesday evenings until 9 o'clock for the accommodation of our customers in the country.

THE MERITS OF WOOD ASHES.

In an essay read before the American Horticultural Society, the Cleveland, Ohio, meeting a few days ago, Mr. J. M. Smith gave an account of the means employed for the prevention of the evil effects of a prolonged drought. Among these means a free use of wood ashes was named as one of the simplest and most effective.

Recently Mr. Smith has made a comparative test of the effects of wood ashes and barn yard manure on a scale large enough to show results that are more than an "indication." Two acres lying side by side were treated exactly alike in every respect except that one was manured with unleached wood ashes, and the other with stable manure. Mr. Smith reports the results of the trial to the Prairie Farmer as follows: The acre fertilized with ashes yielded fifty-one bushels the most, and if there was any difference in quality it was in favor of those that had the ashes. Now, the fair inference would be that the ashes were much the better manure for potatoes. Let us look a little further: The last half of May and the first half of June were wet and cold and so far the two acres seemed to keep just about even. After June 15th the weather became very dry, and there was little rain upon the plants until they were ripe. Very soon after the ground began to get dry it could be plainly seen that those manured from the compost-heap were suffering from want of rain, while those manured with ashes were growing very rapidly. This continued until they were ripe.

The simple fact is, potatoes or strawberries manured with ash stand drought that would be ruinous to crops fertilized with any manure I have ever tried. To this fact I attribute the failure of the compost-heap acre to hold its own with the acre upon which ashes were used. I have tried the experiment many times, always with the same result, provided we have had a dry season during the growth of the crop. I do not know but the rule will hold good with all farm and garden crops, but with the above named there is no doubt. I do not underrate ashes as manure. I have used them in preference to any fertilizer I could get for potatoes for many years.

A MAN'S TERRIBLE STRUGGLE.

Brown's, Me., August 4.—Harvey A. Smith, a man of great strength and courage, struggled on Wednesday with a mad horse. The animal is a large stallion with a vicious disposition. Mr. Smith had the stallion harnessed with another horse, when the stallion became vicious and attacked his mate with his teeth and hoofs. Mr. Smith quickly unhooked the traces and succeeded in uncoupling the horses, when the stallion attacked him. Mr. Smith succeeded in subduing the horse and leading him to the barn, where he tethered him on the barn floor. He removed the harness and was proceeding to take him to his stall, when the vicious brute suddenly attacked him again. The wind blew the barn door shut, and Mr. Smith was imprisoned on the barn floor with the frantic animal. For nearly half an hour he fought him with no weapon but his fists, leaping aside to avoid the assaults as much as possible, but being often knocked down and fearfully bruised. Finally the horse in some way disengaged a sled stake from the side of the door, and Smith saw it rolling toward him on the floor. Seizing the stake he swung it with all the strength of desperation, and striking the stallion just below the ear, with one blow killed him dead at his feet. Smith is badly injured.

GREAT MEN WHO HATED OR LOVED THEIR WIVES.

To count no man happy till he was dead was a maxim of the ancients. To count no man happy till you have examined into his married life may also have an element of practical wisdom in a world in which matrimonial mistakes are so common, and so commonly disastrous. Every one can read off a list of famous men who have notoriously been unhappy in domestic life. Among the married who secured happiness we find at first a few men of the first rank. Dr. Arnold leads the list; and the picture of him is one we are all more or less familiar with from the writings of Dean Stanley.

and Beaconsfield did not place his personal feelings in the foreground. He was a man and his wife made him rich; he was anxious of politics and his wife opened the door of success; he was ambitious of success and his wife was the means of his success. With him, and at least did not hamper him. He was grateful, he was faithful, he was devoted. He was a man who ought to be in such a case to a woman who really loved him; but perhaps his conception of mind was not after all married for the first time in 1860 to Mrs. Lewis. "As for 'love,' all my friends who married for love and beauty are either beating their heads against the wall or are committing morally the same crime (they may commit many crimes to life, but I never intend to marry for love, which, I am sure, is a guarantee of happiness)." Mrs. Lewis when he met her the first time, "I was introduced, by particular desire, to a young man, a very handsome, tall, thin, a flirt and a scoundrel; indeed gifted with a philosophy I should think unequalled in the world. He was a very well educated, a melancholy man; I answered that 'I had no doubt of it.' Yet was to marry her, and to find in her society the most agreeable and the most interesting. On April 12, 1867, when he defected Mrs. Beaconsfield's amendment to the reform bill, younger members of the House of Commons, and the Carlton and begged of him to join them. But, as Lady Beaconsfield was never tired of repeating, "Disgrace to the House of Commons, and to the whole half the ragged pie and drank the rest of the bottle of champagne which she had prepared in anticipation of his acceptance. He was so drunk that he was forced to tell her in joke that he had married her for money, to which she would reply: "You would do me wrong. You would do her wrong."—a statement to which always smilingly assented. Indeed he never lost an opportunity of exalting his wife in the eyes of the world, and in the ears of his household. He spoke of her as the best wife in England."

But at all, if George had had his own way, he would have made Lady Sarah his queen. As it was, she lived every day, and during the reign of Lady Sarah was often to be seen sitting on the lawn in a bowfishing costume. When the king finally married the queen princess, Lady Sarah was one of bridesmaids. On this occasion an old man, who had not been to court since the accession of George III, said to her, "Good day to the king. He was greater than I am, but I am not so great as you are." "I am not so great as you are," said Lady Sarah, and mistaking her for the queen, jumped down on his honest old Jacobite knee to kiss her hand! Lady Sarah, very much confused, bade the king, saying, "I am not the queen, sir." George, who had been told that she was always a rational creature, gave her a slap at Lady Sarah which drew pity and respect.

Two of the remarkable men of the last century were unfortunate in their love affairs. Wolfe was rejected in his first love affair, and, as every one knows, he was killed before he married Miss Lowther, to whom he was engaged, and who subsequently married another man.

few weeks after her husband had hung his command and come home to see her, directed that a thorn tree should be set over her grave and that her name should not be graven upon the headstone. It was after her death that Lord Cornwallis fled to America, the end of which was also, for him, melancholy enough. I read with a good deal of amusement of the romantic and passionate attachment of the young Grotte, afterwards the historian of France, for Harriet Lwin, who is described in his letters as being, of course, very lovely; who, in after days at least, was eccentric, strong featured and masculine.

They Are Speedy, but Can't be Caught to

In India the favorite animals, both for sport and for labor, are the bullocks and jackals. The animals are small, wiry, muscular, and swift. They are trained to race and run well, not only under the saddle, but also in harness. The art of training and racing their beasts, and the sport is encouraged by the English part of the population.

The animal is guided by a cord through the nose, but the driver places more reliance on whip and voice than on the cord. The animal is so trained that he will let the last lapures on the result of a race, taking some interest in that a penurious man will not let him win, and a liberal man will let him win. A native has said that of his family for an entire year he sold himself into voluntary slavery as the result of losing a bet. The races are so arranged that the foreigner can see them from the fact that, although the bullocks may be trained to great swiftness, it seems almost impossible to teach them to run in a straight line. They frequently smash one or more of the vehicles.

Except as are the bullock races when the beasts are harnessed and driven by native drivers, they are far more so when the bullocks are ridden by European soldiers or sportsmen. The animal is so trained that his description lies in the facts which are the almost inevitable result of an attempt to ride these awkward animals.—St. Louis Globe.

Belleville defeated Napane on Tuesday by a score of 29 to 1.
It is the steady stream that works the mill.
The persistent advertiser gains success.
The steam yacht Vesper with a jolly load of Napane youth called at this port on Wednesday morning.
Farmers in Prince Edward county who have threshed their barley and fall wheat express themselves generally as satisfied with the result.

tising" worked and displayed so that it can

The town must be repaid a large income
from those travelling friends who, we presume,
always pay something into the town treasury
for the privilege of holding forth on the market square.
Terra cotta material will soon come into vogue for building summer cottages on the islands and other summer resorts. It is found conducive to comfort and permanence
for such structures.

Vicar General Macdonnell, pastor of Alexandria, has been appointed the first bishop of the see of Alexandria, the Archbishop of Kingston having received notification to that effect.

The members of Victoria Lodge speak
in high terms of the courteous treatment
which they experienced from the "Frontier Boys of Belleville" on the occasion of their visit to that city on Tuesday.

At the sports in Belleville on Tuesday,
Frank Claus, of Shannonsville, won the $5
silver cup, the first prize in the quail match. Mr. Wm. Munill, of Melrose took the second prize, a pair of boots.

Mr. B. W. Washburn and family left on Monday for Sarnia to join Mr. Washburn who has decided to settle down in that state. Mr. Washburn finds the climate congenial and is in every respect satisfied with Florida and its people.

The agitation in favour of a fire limit by-law is gaining in force and the council should not permit another year to pass by without such legislation. It is no use waiting for a great conflagration to emphasize the necessity of such a by-law.

Inspector Donnelly ordered the yacht Vesper to return to Napane on Wednesday and leave her passengers at Deseronto. It appears she had been chartered for the day
and she is not licensed to carry passengers.
No fooling with Capt. Theo. Donnelly.

This is the critical time of the year as far
as material and other fevers are concerned.
People cannot be too careful of the water
they drink, and also of the sanitary condition of their premises. The board of health inspectors could find a tour of inspection
very beneficial to the community. There are many nuisances which are simply pest spots.

The following candidates in the Belleville
district were awarded teachers' certificates
at the recent examinations: District No.
40. Primary—E. Bateman, M. Cockins, E.
Clapp, C. Coleman, H. Cooke, J. English, J.
Halladay, J. Hines, J. Hines, J. Hines,
Mott, W. Moyes, E. Platt, E. Robinson,
Junior—M. Frost, E. Holden, H. Huff, I.

Mr. Wm. Dawes, of New York, who has been visiting here during the past two weeks, has evidently lost none of his old skill as a fisherman. He went down to Hay Bay one day last week and succeeded in catching a fine mako, which is his largest catch there this season. Mr. Dawes will visit his brother at Bradford before returning to New York.

Mr. Ezra Pringle and family have returned to their home in Deseronto, where they have been spending the past month. Mr.
Pringle, who has found the trip very beneficial to health, brought home with him a splendid specimen of the pitcher
plant, which he has given to Mr. B. E.
Rathbun for his conservatory.

On Wednesday afternoon a colt, which had strayed from its dam, was caught in the morning traffic on St. George street and carried into the city. It is his effort to escape. It entered the Misses Evans' shop and Malley's drug store, and was held at bay
it tried to get into Wm's dry goods store by a young man armed with a stick.
Some wags then tried to drive it into Adams Bros, but the effort failed.

The tide of travel from Toronto down
the lake, Bay of Quinte and St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Saguenay could be increased fifty fold by placing a really first-class line of steamers on this important route. The Royal Mail Line of Steamers, though it is not equal to the demand, as the boats are generally slow and far behind the age in their arrangements for travel. What is wanted is a number of boats like those which ply
from Cleveland to the upper lake ports.

Police Court.
On Monday evening Chief Gwynn arrested Hugh Trainor for drunken and disorderly conduct. He appeared next day before the magistrate who fined him $1
and costs, or $3 in all, to be paid by the 25th, failing which ten days in jail.

Successful Candidates.
The following is the list of the candidates who wrote at Deseronto who have been awarded teachers' certificates at the recent examinations: Primary—Nellie Bowen, Edith Cooke, Edith Denness, Theodore Dennison, A. Kierman and Mahala Vance; Junior—Jennie McFarlane,
Jennie McMillen and J. Seymour.
These correspond to the first and second class certificates respectively.

Thanks.
At a recent meeting of Victoria Lodge,
No. 5, P. A. B. B., on motion of Bro. Wm.
Bel a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Rev. R. J. Craig, M. A., for his admirable sermon preached to the members of the Lodge on Sunday evening, Aug. 10th.
A hearty resolution was also carried conveying to the Citizens' Band of Deseronto the thanks of the society for the admirable manner in which that organization had performed its services at the Belleville demonstration.

Outfitters' Meeting.
Mr. James Secombe is a delegate from Deseronto to the meeting of the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Ontario, which is in session this week at Toronto.
The Grand Master reported stately and satisfactory advancement. The Order is now in this province 17,600 members.
During the past 34 years $62,500 has been expended in benevolence. There were 41
last year, a larger number than usual, owing, no doubt, to the grippe. The net increase in membership last year was 491.
The receipts of the Grand Lodge for the year were $9,845, and the expenditures $8,910.

Attempted Suicide.
Milton Morey, a farmer living near Harrowsmith, tried to kill himself on Wednesday morning. He had been drinking heavily at the celebration in the village on Tuesday, and being engaged at his wife and father-in-law's as the latter would not allow Mr. Morey's wife to go home with him, he said he would shoot himself. He loaded his gun with shot and a heavy charge of powder and aimed his gun at his head, but he pulled the trigger. His son heard the shot and went to the place and was horrified to see his father covered with blood. Drs. Day and Dupuis
were summoned and found that the wretched
man had shot off his chin and both jaws
and was breathing through a hole in his throat. He had also attempted to cut his wrist and bleed himself to death, but the order in his head was to shoot. Dr. Dupuis looked away the two sides of the jaw and saw the skull together and there are hopes that he may survive. The doctors think the man is insane. He has only two teeth on each side of his mouth.

It is reported that the C. P. R. Company has purchased the controlling stock of the Wabash.

A DISGUSTING HABIT.

DEAR TRIBUNE.—Is it not singular that in the exercise of their undoubted right to chew whatever loathsome thing they please, some of our tobacco chewers invade the sanctity of others? And that these even in the church, while worshipping God, such persons have a quiver in their mouth, and in utter violation of all decorum, expectorate freely during the service. This was done in the Presbyterian Church last Sabbath evening, as the carpet next morning too plainly showed.
What a sacrilege to the place and time!
What a reflection upon their own personal cleanliness! Can such persons be persuaded to leave their tobacco, or whatever mysterious substance it is, outside of our churches? This is much to be desired.
If not, if they are such slaves to the disgusting habit that they must chew or suffer untold tortures, then we would ask them in the name of a long-suffering community to stay outside of our churches.

Mr. J. Adams has removed to the house on Centre street lately occupied by Mrs. Brown, dressmaker.

The sleep Sovereign and other craft are engaged transporting sand from the Fredericksburg shore to Deseronto for the Rathbun Company.

The friends of James McGill, auditor of the Rathbun Company, will be pleased to hear that he is convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever.

Mr. Ormiston, the grand master of the I. O. O. F. body of Ontario, is a resident of Deseronto and holds the position of collector of customs.

One of the young men in Wims & Co. shop is practicing diligently at the club exercise preparatory to knocking down prices. Look out for bargains.

Mr. Yeomans has made a great success of the law at the General Office. He has also set out some beds of geraniums and foliage plants. These improvements are much admired by visitors to town.

The prospects for good prices for hops are improving. It is estimated that there will be a shortage of 400,000 cwt. in the English crop, and this, it is believed, will exert an important influence on the price later on.

It is safe, at this time of year especially, to boil all water intended for drinking and then to cool it, and, if desired to restore some of the evaporated air to it by pouring it several times from one pitcher to another.

Apple dealers are paying $2 per barrel for the Duchess variety of apples and supply the barrel and pack the fruit. American buyers are in Prince Edward County and say that the crop in New York state is very poor.

We had a kind letter the other day from Mr. Pooler formerly of this office. He is a foreman in the press department of the government bureau of printing. He invites the editor to inspect that establishment.

Commissioner Morrison has had men busy grading Stanley at so-called latter the great Stanley, the African explorer, and the ornamental official who costs this country 100,000 a year for doing little or nothing.

Mr. J. L. Ferguson the other day made a fearful onslaught on the rats in his barn and in a few minutes killed fifteen of the vermin. Shortly afterwards he was seen proceeding with them on his truck in the direction of the cemetery.

The new sunlight in the Church of the Redeemer is a pronounced success diffusing a splendid light. There were general expressions of satisfaction last Sunday with the different changes recently effected by the Board of Managers.

The Intelligencer states that in consequence of the long continued ill health of Mr. Chas. Wilkins, bakery owner, the appointment of an overseer has become a matter of necessity, and that Mr. H. Corley, M. P., has asked that an appointment be made.

"The widest plank on earth" is on exhibition at the railway station in this city. It was cut at the Elk River mill, and is sixteen feet in width. It will be among the Humboldt exhibits at the World's Fair in Chicago.

The conference of Anglican delegates from the provincial synods and dioceses of the Dominion finished their labours at Winnipeg on Saturday and adopted a report recommending the constitution of the Church of England in British North America.

Mr. J. P. Earney, of this office, left last Saturday for Brampton to take the position of foreman in the office of the Conservator. It is surprising the number of foremen who have graduated from THE TRIBUNE office which seems to be a normal school for printers.

The yacht Norah, owned by John Bell, Q.C., has been hauled up on the marine railway here and has undergone repairs and complete overhauling preparatory to the fall regatta. Mr. Bell has accepted a challenge for a thirty mile race with the yacht Wilde Wings on the 30th of August for the Fisher cup.

The guards and keepers are now given their dinners in the Kingston penitentiary. In future the officers will not be allowed to leave the institution during dinner hour. This preparation is taken in order to be prepared for a revolt should it take place while the convicts are in the dining hall.

Five out of the six members of the business and editorial staff of the Kingston Daily have resigned. Dr. Redmond has taken a position in Montreal. Dr. Oakes an agency, J. Macdonald becomes secretary of the school board, W. Givens goes west and J. Marshall resigns because of ill-health.

A simple remedy for round shoulders, by which so many young ladies are deformed, is to stand facing a corner of the room, and with hands extended on the wall in either direction, and the feet placed to move the body slowly toward the corner. This exercise, faithfully repeated every morning, will make the form beautifully erect.

It is now generally conceded that the Equal Rights party is practically dead outside of the city of Toronto and the county of Ontario. The decrease of the Liberal Unionists of Great Britain, the Magna Carta of the United States and the Equal Rights and Third Parties in Canada, would seem to indicate that the people of the Anglo-American countries consider two great parties a political necessity and sufficient for all practical purposes.

Henry George, who lately reached England after a trip to Australia, says that the imperial federation movement is practically dead in the Australian colonies. It has been dead in Canada for some time, the Province of Quebec being opposed to any such innovation, and the movement in Ontario having chiefly been confined to some fellows in Toronto who are in the middle of the movement in this province have used the exiled and settled down in the United States.

The Murray Canal.

Over five hundred vessels of all classes have already passed through the Murray canal this season. There is no doubt that the canal will become a great highway for commerce and that Trenton, Deseronto and other towns along the bay will reap great benefits by its construction.

A Two of Yachts.

A very pretty sight was witnessed here on Wednesday forenoon when the tug Emma Munsen, of the Rathbun Company, passed down the bay with two handsome yachts in tow. They came from Deseronto where they had been participating in the regatta. They were on their way to Kingston where a regatta is in progress.

Christened on the steamer Hera.

On Monday, while the steamer Hera was on her way from the Islands to Kingston with an excursion party from Bay of Quinte, an unusual incident occurred. A child, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Richardson, was christened by Rev. F. B. Stratton. Just as the clergyman was sprinkling the infant with the blue water of life, Lawrence and pronouncing her name Eva Lane Richardson, the wheel was blown and the passengers gave a hearty cheer. The event occurred while the boat was passing the foot of Wolfe Island.

Whig.

Change of Quarters.

Mr. Wm. Stoddard, in his advertisement in another column, directs the attention of the public to the fact that he has moved his tailoring and clothing store to the Oliver Block, Main street. He has fitted it up in city style and laid in a large stock of personally selected and newly imported cloths for the fall and winter trade. Ladies will observe that he is prepared to make up garments in the latest London styles. Persons at a distance can have samples of cloths sent and directions for self-measurement forwarded by writing for the same. Mr. Stoddard will be glad to show his goods to all who call, feeling confident of his ability to please all tastes.

Does Not Apply.

The communication of "Episcopos" in reference to tobacco spitting in the Presbytery Church on the evening of Sunday 10th inst., has been the cause of some hard feeling, as several of the "Presbytery Boys" have charged that Church on that day have been tainted by some thoughtless people with having the offender in their ranks. It is almost needless to state that such was not the case; nor is the authorized state that Mr. Joseph Carwell, sexton of the Church, states that the ill-mannered individual who expectorated so freely did not sit in the body of the church which was occupied by the brethren of Victoria Lodge, but on one of the side seats, and the laudan, therefore, do not apply to the "Presbytery Boys."

To The Public.

By special request Dr. Jebb, the renowned optical specialist, (formerly of New York), and who has for the past six weeks been in Belleville, is in Deseronto at Mr. Eggar's Drug Store and will remain for a few days only. Dr. Jebb is the only optician in Canada who makes a specialty of grinding the glasses. Those who are afflicted with weak eyes, poor sight, granulated and inflamed lids, headache over and back of the eye, should consult him. Read his circular and see what others say of him. Dr. Jebb has the highest references that can be obtained in Canada and the United States, (see circular). Examination of the eyes and sight tested free of charge. We highly recommend him. Don't miss this rare opportunity.

Henry Picking.

Mr. David Smith, the huckleberry king, made his first dining out last week at the Bald mountains and came home with 35 pairs of huckleberries. He left again on Wednesday on another cruise, this time for Black River. He never saw the berries so plentiful or good as they are this year in Kaladar. At Kaladar station, agents for Toronto and Kingston firms are buying up all the berries that can be secured and shipping them daily to different points. A large trade has developed and hundreds of pickers have been busy in that region gathering the wild fruit. As a result much ready money is placed in circulation where it is much needed. This trade is destined to reach mammoth proportions and the demand being very great. Mr. Smith reports very heavy frosts at Kaladar on the 16th and 17th; cucumbers, melons, corn, etc., were turned black, but fortunately the frost did not cover a very extensive area of country.

Crops in Manitoba.

The temperature dropped in various parts of Manitoba to 33° during the past week, but it is gratifying to report that no damage was done to the crops by frost, and that there is reason to believe that the harvest will be the best in the history of the country. The government bulletin intimates an average wheat yield of 24.6 bushels per acre. The best district this year is the northwestern portion of the province, where 30 bushels an acre are looked for. The estimate of the grain destroyed by the hailstorm of August 2 is: Wheat, 173,141 bushels; oats 240,482 bushels; 20,908 bushels. The average yield of barley over the province is 34.3 bushels; and of oats 44 bushels. This in both cases a double of last year's figures. It is estimated that there will be 21,000,000 bushels of grain. Making the usual allowance for waste, the total production of wheat will leave an actual crop of about 16,000,000 bushels. This is a splendid and most prove of great benefit to the whole country.

The Public School.

The Deseronto public school re-opens for the fall term on Monday, when it is hoped that all the pupils will be in attendance ready to begin. Parents will note a very great favour on the school board and teachers by insisting on punctual attendance as classes are greatly impeded in their work by children entering at irregular intervals after the school re-opens. Therefore, let there be no tardy delinquency on Monday morning. The only change in the staff has been caused by the retirement of Miss Porter; the board have filled this vacancy by the employment of Miss M. C. Ross, of Perth, who has recently gained a second class professional certificate with honours at the Ottawa normal school. The board have taken action of the vacation to make several changes, repairs and improvements in the building. The stoves have been taken down, let up pipes, pipes, chimneys, etc., thoroughly cleaned; seats have been repaired and those in the Principals' and teachers' rooms, and the principal and two fanlights have been placed between the Principals' and other rooms for ventilation. A new sidewalk has been laid down and the approach from Dundas street improved. With teachers and scholars thoroughly regenerated by the vacation, and the school re-opens on Monday, the pupils, great things will reasonably be expected during the coming fall and winter terms.

IN REGARD TO SUNSTROKE.

The Things to be Done to Avoid It, or When It Occurs.

Sunstroke is one of the afflictions to which humanity is liable in summer during the hot days of the weather. Heat and moisture together seem to be the conditions most favorable to its occurrence, for moisture in warm air prevents the radiation of heat from the body, and thermal fever or sunstroke, as it is called, is probably an over-heating of the blood, producing chemical or fermentative changes in it which are inimical to health and even to life. When, therefore, during the hottest term, one who has been exposed to the sun's heated rays in a humid atmosphere begins to suffer from headache, dizziness, nausea, and disturbance of sight, accompanied with sudden and great prostration of the physical forces, sunstroke is probably imminent.

Each and every one, who, when the symptoms above given manifest themselves, immediately seeks a cool place and make use of some simple restoratives, such as aromatic ammonia, &c., and he may avoid further trouble. But if he persists with his business, he will doubtless soon become very ill, which illness usually takes the form of heat, exhaustion, heat, apoplexy, or genuine sunstroke, the thermal fever of some writers. Those who are exhausted by the heat have a cool, moist skin, a rapid, weak pulse and respiration movement, and the pupil of the eye is dilated. In fact, the symptoms are those of collapse. These patients will probably recover promptly, an event which may be hastened by the use of a tonic and restorative treatment.

Those who suffer from heat apoplexy frequently become unconscious at the onset. The heart and breathing apparatus are not markedly disturbed and the pupil may be normal, but unconsciousness deepens and the case soon turns to that of a fatal event. An artery has been broken in the brain, and the perverted blood pressing on the nerve centres, brings about the fatal event. A treatment calculated to draw the blood from the brain to the extremities, hot foot baths, bleedings, &c., promises to be the most useful in such cases.

The thermal fever patient is unconscious and convulsed, and his body temperature may be 104° or 105°. The pulse is rapid, and the degrees above normal. The skin of the patient feels as though it would burn your hand when laid thereon. In this case the thorough and prompt application of cold is absolutely to be had in either of the two cases last referred to. Complete recovery from sunstroke is rare, the brains being permanently crippled or affected. Incidence in the coldest climate, it is said, affords most hope for such patients.—Boston Herald.

Putting Children to Bed.

The mother who puts the child to bed, and leaves the light and goes down stairs, and leaves him to his conjuring, dreams and idleness and disbelieving, or bent on overcoming his mischievousness, is doing something that one would think of small worth to her—not only his nervous flow, but his love of himself; and the day will come when fate will have its revenge on her in his own indifference to her, and she will recognize it, even if he behave ill at outward respects like a dutiful son. It is her part to examine the matter; to reason with the child, to comfort him, to see how far it is possible to make him do as he should. If she cannot say with him herself, she can at least leave the door open so that he may hear the cheerful down-stairs voices, the hum of life, not to be sent into his lonely room, so that the unfortunate thought of his desperate little must make it; he can leave a lamp on the hearth, and so let there be some light to dispel his fancies and to keep back the dark and unshaped visions. She may regard it as trifling, but to him it is tremendous and if she is wise either in mother love or human kindness she will not let the imaginative and sensitive child suffer more than must, remembering that that temperament, if it has more to enjoy through life than others, has also much more to suffer.

When a few nights have failed to bring calm to the little being out of the experience, and the last going to bed alone is as bad as the first, and all threats have only made the matter worse, and all reasoning has produced no good result; when he has tried to conquer, and the effort has left him from being as violently as if he has an ague—then it is something not to be overcome by harsh or rough or peremptory measures, and the mother should see to it that this child has some active physical exercise just before going to bed that will make his little body glad of rest, and also would be his down-blessing, or find some work that he can do up stairs till he falls asleep. In order to afford him the comfort of companionship and the sense of her embracing love, and soothe his irritable nerves to repose instead of rousing them to action. These nerves would never have been irritable if she had not insisted on her own way too long in the beginning. I should have given them no chance to get on fire and then to go on exciting themselves. I should put the child to bed alone from the very outset of his career, so that it was his own order of things to him, and he had had the habit established of quiet sleep and absence of fear from the first, in ninety nine cases out of a hundred there would never have been any trouble of the sort.

But if through any idiosyncrasy of the child or remembrance of her own, the fear has come upon him, she will never in all the years remaining have a greater love of that child than that which will give her who sees her hovering over her pillow, moving about his room, or feels her presence on the bed beside him till the drowsy warmth steals over and wraps around and imagination and all together, and lets her off again to the duties that are less suggestive of that child's nerves, to the pleasures that are less pleasant than the love he gives her in return.—Harper's Bazar.

They Learned Something.

Three men sat together on Moor's avenue yesterday. All were sweating and mopping. It was hot—awful hot. "I've got to have a glass of beer to cool off," remarked one. "You fellows have some!" "You bet!" promptly replied one. "Excuse me," said the other, who was a doctor. "Now, then, let me show you something. You, Tom, let me feel your pulse. Now, you, Henry. Now, then, I'm going to beat you."

All three entered a saloon. While Tom was looking his beer the doctor seated Henry in a chair and gave him a fan. At the end of five minutes Tom joined them, saying: "A-h-h, that touches the spot! I feel cooler!" "Do you?" queried the doctor. "You pulse has increased just eight beats to the minute, while Henry's decreased six, making a difference of fourteen in his favor. Wait a bit."

It wasn't over three minutes before Henry laid down the fan, feeling cool enough, while Tom pulled out his handkerchief and said: "A-h-h, that touches the spot! I feel cooler!" "There's the case I want to make out," said the doctor. "You see, fan was given to Henry, and will be for an hour or so. Our friend here has lost his thirst and is cool enough for a fast race."—Detroit Free Press.

ODD BITS OF LIFE.

Montagu Williams, in his "Leaves of a Life," tells an amusing anecdote to illustrate the singular methods which, occasionally, an English jury secures the unanimity necessary to a verdict. It need hardly be said, says the Youth's Companion, that nothing of the kind could possibly happen in the United States. In this country men do not serve on juries at their own pleasure, but when they are drawn as jurors, and one who is prejudiced is not allowed to serve; but the author quoted is a high authority on the English practice.

A man named Watkins was charged with being the ringleader in a riot during a parliamentary election. He was a strong conservative and a certain outlier of the liberal party had been heard to declare that he would get on the jury and then have a leg cut off rather than acquit Watkins. When the trial began the butcher was found to be one of the jury-men.

Watkins counsel stated to the court the butcher's remark and then said: "The gentleman will see the impropriety of retaining in the jury-box, and will at once retire."

"I shan't budge an inch!" answered the butcher, bracing himself in his seat. "I never said what has been reported, and if I had said it I should stand on my rights as an Englishman. I've a right to serve on the jury, and on the jury I'll serve!"

The Judge declined to interfere, but simply said: "We must rely upon this gentleman's good sense and the obligation he attaches to his oath."

The case lasted two days, and the evidence was very conflicting. Some witnesses swore that Watkins mounted on a white horse, led the rioters. Other witnesses swore that he was in another part of the borough when the disturbances took place.

At a recess the second day the jury retired. At 1 o'clock the judge sent a messenger to advise if they had agreed. They came into court and stated that they were still undecided. The judge informed them that he would adjourn the court for the night.

At 4 o'clock in the morning news was sent to judge and counsel that the jury had reached a verdict. The witness called upon the names of the jury were read over only eleven minutes.

One jurymen has not responded to his name, said the judge. It was the butcher; his name was called a second time and a feeble voice answered "Here."

The judge then asked the jury box if he had guessed accurately what had occurred. The butcher's coat and waistcoat were torn from his back, his shirt sleeves were lacerated, and his face was besmeared with blood. From the first the jury had stood aloof to judge and counsel that the jury had reached a verdict. The witness called upon the names of the jury were read over only eleven minutes.

COUNTERFEIT COIN.

A new counterfeit ten cent piece is in circulation which so closely resembles the genuine that it can easily be passed. It differs from the usual counterfeit in that a genuine silver plating covers the German silver which forms the body of the coin. This gives it a ring very nearly like that of good money, and also does away with the greasy feeling which counterfeiters are detected by. The coin is about the size of the genuine, and the date of 1887. The milling is not so deep on the counterfeit and the edges are much sharper than those of a genuine dime. WHAT HE WANTS TO KNOW. A city clergyman and a small boy had a fine hunt in a Guelph hotel at an early morning hour during the past week. The clergyman was attending grand lodge, and in the silent hours of the night he paid a visit to the hotel. The boy, who was left at home, about four sizes too large, were left at home. Since that time he has been missing. "Who Dunn it?" The clergyman, it seems, spent a very wakeful night and five o'clock decided to take a walk. He dressed, stepped outside of his boots, and tried to shake himself, but he was really set down for. The register showed he was all right, but his boots were not. Then the hotel man, and after his search the police were found outside of the door of the prince of order, Orontothetika. The cleric seized them and left another in their place. At seven o'clock he left for Kingston. He told a friend about his morning told and added, with a twinkle: "I am afraid many of the brethren will be a lively time when they wake up, for the mixture seems to be very general." Of course the official organ will thunder about the matter, and the matter will be made, "Who Dunn it?"—Whit, Kingston. The schooner William Irving, of Gloucester, Mass., has been seized by the collector of Customs at Souris, P.E.I. Sealers valued at $150,000 are being prepared at Victoria, B. C., for shipment to England via the C. P. R. The Northern Pacific and Manitoba railway has been leased for a hundred years to the Northern Pacific Company. Senator Lopez, the Argentine Minister of Finance, has to have the republic's finances in a sound condition in a year. A big university scheme is on foot in the United States. It is proposed to endow the institution with $200,000 at the start. The S.S. Albatross, lumber laden, from Montreal to Quebec, Eng., is ashore at Cape Race. There is no hope of getting her off. A letter from Guatemala says a proclamation has been issued to the effect that every man who is not ready for military duty will be shot. A thermometer reached the freezing point in three places in Manitoba on Saturday night, but reports state that no damage was done. Mrs. Ballantyne, wife of Adam Ballantyne, grocer, of Hamilton, committed suicide by jumping from the roof of the family residence. Only 300 feet remain to be completed in the St. Clair river tunnel and if no delay occurs the two shields should meet within the next ten days. Mr. Sanford Fleming, C. E., estimates that the cost of the proposed Pacific cable between Canada, New Zealand and Australia will be $1,500,000. The mounted police, at the request of the Government, report that 400,000 acres of land have been broken and cropped within 30 miles of Calgary. A drunken man named Smith threw his wife down stairs at their home in Montreal. The woman died before medical aid could be summoned. A Duluth dispatch states that Canadian lumber thieves have carried away 180,000 feet of timber from the Rainy river district in Minnesota during the past year. The British Parliament was prorogued Monday. The speech referred to in the Newfoundland and Behring Sea questions and dealt at length with the African settlement. Senator Edmunds, in the U. S. Senate introduced an amendment to the tariff bill embodying the reciprocity policy advocated by Mr. Blaine, the sugar duty being the most of secure reciprocity privileges. Donald Morrison, M.P., who was one of the Newfoundland delegation to Canada, is now at Halifax and reports that the Newfoundland claims by one means or other.

A HARD CORNER.

The age of 30 is a hard corner for a woman to turn, and 35 is still harder. She feels that she is fast leaving her youth behind her. But there is a way out of this. A woman should be faded and passed at 35, or even at 40. The chief cause of the early fading of many women is found in the fact that many of them suffer from some form of female weakness or disease which robs the face of its bloom, draws dark circles about the eyes, brings early wrinkles and sallowness, and stamps the face and figure with signs of ill health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all these troubles, and bring back the lost bloom, and remove the pains and ailments which make women grow old before their time. Guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or price ($1.00) refunded. At St. Etienne, Man., on Saturday night, Henry Haulin, aged 19, placed a heavily loaded rifle in his mouth and killed himself instantly. Part of his head was blown off. A DAUGHTER'S INFLUENCE. I had a very severe attack of bloody diarrhoea and was persecuted by my daughter to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I did with great success, as less than two bottles cured me. It is worth its weight in gold. Miss Maudie Wynn, Pembroke, Ont. CATARRH CURED. Health and sweet breath restored, by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50c. Nasal Injector free. Sold by W. G. Fagar.

A FREAK OF NATURE.

A curious freak of agriculture happened this season on lot 15, con. 3, Sullivan Township, about five miles west of this place, which completely eclipses anything we have ever seen during our agricultural experience. A year ago last spring Mr. Wm. Grant sowed a field with wild wheat and seeded it down, from which he reaped an excellent crop of grain of various kinds. The seed made a good catch and the grass looked well last spring, but what surprised him was the manner in which it appeared to sprout from the roots of last year's wheat stalks. While the blade did not look like timothy that was accounted for by the supposition that the grass seed had not been pure timothy, and it was not until it began to shoot out with heads that it was seen the crop was fall wheat of vitality, loss of memory, and spring wheat crop. It turned out a splendid crop of fall wheat of the best variety although the crop that grew from the same roots the summer before was of the bald variety. The hay was also good, and the combined crops were so heavy that they had to be cut with a mower, and are now safely housed. ALL MEN. young, old, or middle-aged, who find themselves nervous, weak, exhausted, withers broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, and dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, emissions, lack of energy, pain in the back, eye lids and heavy, hawkins, deposits in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and shaky muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rotated by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with purple circles, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. The system or vital force having lost its tension every function is in consequence. Those who through abuse committed in ignorance may be permanently cured. Send your address for book on all diseases to Dr. M. N. LUBON, 60 Front Street East, Toronto, Ont. Books sent free sealed. Heart disease, the symptoms of which are faintness, purple lips, numbness, palpitation, skip beats, hot flushes, rush of blood to the head, dull pain in the heart with beats strong, rapid and irregular, the second heart beat quicker than the first, pain about the breast bone, etc., can positively be cured. No cure, no pay. Send for book. Address: M. N. LUBON, 60 Front Street East, Toronto, Ont. 45 A PRETTY PLUSH LAMBREQUIN. A very simple yet effective lambrequin is made of a strip of plush eighteen or twenty inches wide, and long enough to drop twenty inches below the ends of your mantle. Line with caoutchouc flannel, woolly side out, and trim the front and ends with silk fringe about two inches in width. When laid over your mantle the corners will drop gracefully of their own accord, and the effect will be as charming as could desire. The same lambrequin may be looped at one corner or at the centre and fastened with a bow or tied on the front. Where the mantle is carried many people prefer to use a simple plush scarf to protect the wood. The ends are then decorated or fringed as one may prefer.—Exchange. MISS HELEN R. SINCLAIR, of Ninette, Man., writes that she has used Burdock Blood Bitters for loss of appetite and headache with the greatest benefit and heartily recommends it. MISS WARTMAN, Deseronto, Aug. 14th, 1890.

One of the large willows in front of the saw factory was broken off by the fierce gale which raged for an hour yesterday afternoon.

The weather during the past week has been cool. Yesterday afternoon there were several heavy showers of rain which were gladly welcomed.

Ottawa despatches announce that the marine department is about to erect range lights at the entrance of the bay and put down buoys. An effort will also be made to connect Trenton directly with the canal by dredging some four hundred yards from the harbor to the canal.

At last the beautiful Bay is beginning to attract the eye of the outside world
and steamboat owners who have any regard for the enjoyment and reliability of their passengers are planning how they can arrange their time tables
so as to pass through the Bay of Quinte.
The steamer "Jocum" was the last to avail herself of the privilege, and if the magnitude and resonance of her whistle
were any indication she was just as proud
as ever Deserontians were to see her.
We trust before long she too may find it pleasant and profitable to include Deseronto amongst her stopping places between Picton, Cataraugus and Montreal weekly.

Methodist Church.

The subject of discourse, by the Pastor,
next Lord's day, in the Methodist church,
will be "The Kingdom in Heaven." At this evening service, a talented lady evangelist of New York City, will give an address.
All seats free, courteous ushers will wait
on you.

Deseronto Canadian Shipping.

There is very little doing in Canadian
shipways this year, beyond a few repairs.
According to the statistical abstract
recently issued by the government, the decrease in Canadian tonnage last year was 49,161 tons representing a value of $1,474,
880. During the three years the decrease figures up 177,000 tons.

Deseronto High School.

The Deseronto High School will reopen on Monday, Sept. 1st. We are glad to learn that numbers of new applications are coming in from all quarters. It would be well for all those contemplating taking pupil boarders to send their names with particulars as to rates and accommodations
to the Secretary of the School Board, Mr.
T. H. Naamith.

East Hastings Election.

On Tuesday, Mr. Charles Hudson, Sec. of the township of Tyndeville, filed with the registrar of the Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, a cross-petition in the East Hastings election case. He seeks to have it declared that the unsuccessful candidate, N.
M. Vernilyea, should be disqualified for corrupt practices, including bribery, treating and ballot-box stuffing.

Potter Court.

Chief Gungy arrested Daniel Hazlett
yesterday for purchasing whiskey for Peter Maricle, Indian, Slash Road. Police Commissioner McCullough after trial sentenced Hazlett to pay a fine of $30 and costs and also to spend one month in the Deseronto jail. Maricle was discharged. The Commissioner informed Hazlett that if he appeared before him again he would sentence him to a much longer term. Mr. Bedford appeared for the Indian department.

Milk Skimmers.

Will some patrons of factories never learn honesty? The steepest system of milk inspection is doing much good, yet it is to be regretted that the evil of skimming and watering milk still remains to some extent,
and it behooves the Dairywomen's Association to stamp it out without mercy. The inspector of the Peterborough District yesterday reported four skimmers in one factory, nine in another and still seven in another. A fine of fifty dollars each will have a salutary effect.

Won by Hard Work.

Mr. T. C. Doldge, of 372 Wellesley Street, Toronto, a fourth-year undergraduate of Toronto University, won The Canadian Queen's "Free Trip to Europe" by making over eleven hundred words from letters contained in the issue of the magazine.
Mr. Doldge worked over seventy hours to accomplish the task. He says by the "Parade," September 3rd, and will be present at the celebration of the publication of The Queen will soon announce another "Free Trip to Europe" word contest, with $200
for expenses.

Confagration at Thousand Island Park.

Early yesterday morning the Thousand Island Park hotel was burned to the ground
together with six cottages, store,
pavilion, butcher shop, bakery, gas house,
chapel and barn. The fire is supposed to have originated in the bakery. All the boarders escaped, losing, however, their wearing apparel and jewelry. The laundress was supposed to have perished in the flames,
but was afterwards found to have been badly
but not fatally burned. The hotel cost $85,000, and was insured for $50,000. All the cottages were insured.

Good Fishing.

There is now splendid fishing in all parts of the bay and good catches are reported on every side. Rev. R. J. Craig and Councilor Geddie went to the other side of the bay and maintained their record. Messrs. G. A. Brown and C. A. Millner caught 55 lb. of bass in a few hours near the lighthouse. Master Fred Richardson captured a 34 lb. bass
although he broke his pole in the operation.
Mr. C. E. Hubbs, of the Deseronto Flour
Mills, has edited all records of the season
thus far in this section. He went out at 5:30 o'clock on Tuesday morning and at 5:30 returned with 17 splendid bass weighing about 40 lbs. On Friday morning he killed 21 bass in the same time. The Flour Mill will not yield the championship to any establishment in Deseronto.

Epworth League.

A branch of the Epworth League, in connection with the Deseronto Methodist Church, was instituted, under charter from Canadian Headquarters, Toronto, on Monday evening last. The organization has rapidly superseding all other Young People's Associations in connection with the Evangelical churches of Canada and the United States, and is under the special sanction of the general Conference of the Methodist Church in Canada. The young people after a brief session of the music of the operation, entered heartily into the matter and elected the following officers: Officers for the current year, viz: President, W. W.
McGrath; 1st Vice-President, Department of christian work, Mrs. J. J. Rice; 2nd Vice-President, social and entertainment department, G. Fred Huff; 3rd Vice-President, department of correspondence, Mr. S.
Warden; 4th Vice-Pre-., department of finance, Miss Louise Hugart; Secretary, Miss Louise Hugart; Treasurer, J. McCloskey; Honorary Pres., Rev. J. J. Rice. The formal sanction of the officers elected by the U. S. Board is all that now wanting to render the organization complete when it will at once proceed to business.

The Ella Ho- carried a large excursion
from Picton to Belleville on Wednesday.
Chief Gungy came into possession of a nice stretch of the other way without much cost or trouble to himself.

A special meeting of Court Deseronto, I.
O. F., will be held at their Chambers on Wednesday evening, 27th inst.

burgh yesterday.

A good drain from the public school is required to keep the cellars clear of water which accumulates there from rain, and which must produce unhealthily results.

Little boys were afloat on catamarans on the lake which formed at Dryden's corner, Edmund street, after the heavy rains yesterday. Better drainage is sorely needed in that locality.

Nine piers of the Belleville bay bridge
are finished and nine more are completed to within a few feet of the surface and are ready for the masonry. The work is tardious and progress is necessarily slow.

Mr. Fred Smith, steward of the steamer Alexandria, who has been sailing for some time was brought over from Rochester, N.
Y., on the last trip of the steamer. He died at his home in Picton on Wednesday.
The funeral, which will be under the auspices of the Independent Foresters, will take place on Sunday.

About three-fourths of the dogs in town
are still without a corporation tag. A few people have paid up, and they ask the Tribune why they should pay and others
be allowed to evade the tax. We know not all that we desire is for some person with a good unerring rifle to come along and shoot all the dogs on Main street.
There are a score of them in our neigh-
hood of no earthly use except to deafen
people with their howling and barking.

Teachers and others desirous of combining business with pleasure can do so by visiting Thousand Island Park during July and August, where the Dominion Business College, Kingston, intend giving a short,
sharp course on commercial subjects.

A VISIT TO THE MEMORIAL CHURCH

On a recent Sunday, a bright, beautiful day, a double load unfilled, to visit the Memorial Church at Adolphustown, caused us to leave our camp at "Poplar Nook"
and drive the distance. Leaving about 9:30 a.m. passed on the high road overlooking the Bay a succession of views unequalled for grandeur, and because of their proximity to home, hardly appreciated by Deser-ontians. One of two turns to the right and South brought us in view of Hay Bay
and the pretty little islands which dot it and there. The ferry is a primitive structure, and at the end of the route has to be backed off on the land; a great convenience notwithstanding, as it saves many a drive of several miles around the head of the Bay.

From the ferry to the old Quaker meeting house the road runs along the Bay shore,
and for a long distance, passes the beautiful farm of Mr. Platt, comprising eleven hundred acres, well stocked with horses,
cattle, sheep and pigs, with a fine building
and, in fact, everything in good order and to correspond. Near the turn of the road is situated an old Methodist meeting house
where in the thirties a sad and tragic scene occurred; a party of twenty or more while crossing from the opposite shore to attend meeting were precipitated into the water
and about half the number were drowned.
Their bodies were afterwards recovered and laid side by side in front of the church to which they were going.

From Thompson's Point, near which we passed, until Adolphustown was reached,
there was a succession of good comfortable
farm houses, with the farms evidently well looked after. Reaching the town, the Church we felt some reluctance at entering
so late, but a lady seeing our perplexity
kindly came outside and invited us to enter.
To much has been written about this beautiful edifice that it is needless to attempt a further description, but, when after listening to an interesting discourse
by the Pastor, Mr. F. Forster, and joining in the remaining portion of the service of which particularly the singing was hearty and well rendered, we felt that we had through the kindness of the Pastor, being shown the different items of interest and autually embodied in the building, we felt that we had not been a fitting witness of such a worthy and sad and matron with ages ranged from 67 to 97 years, whose farsightedness in long gone years, led them to settle in such a magnificent church.

Our return drive of two hours was pleasant and when we reached camp a sumptuous dinner was not the least agreeable portion of an interesting and profitable outing. Com.

A TRIAL OF SPEED.

On Monday night the swift Hero and the well known steamer Cornish of the Mail line, both bound up, left Deseronto at 8:25 exactly abreast of each other and kept in close company until they were within a few hundred yards of shore where the Hero began to shove her nose ahead of her larger rival, much to the latter's disgust, to judge from the black clouds of smoke, which increased in volume as the Hero was pushed on. It was plainly to be seen that the Hero was the faster boat of the two, for she was well ahead of the Cornish when the Telegraph Island was reached she was three lengths ahead. The Hero increased her speed and all the way up to Belleville, which she reached six minutes before the Cornish.
The water was very smooth, not a breath of wind ruffling the surface, and the puffing
and blowing of the two machines was heard back from the high hills which line the shores. The Hero has been laying for the last few days, and the Kingston boat was laboring under a disadvantage then, as she was of an inferior quality and she took too long to raise steam. The run from Deseronto to Belleville was made in one hour and a quarter. —Intelligencer.

and she will be long before we have a change of teachers. This continued changing of teachers has kept our school back in the past.

Our town pump has been out of order for

TYENDINAGA RESERVE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

We referred last week to the improvements
which have been made on Chief Ansoothak's out-building, but were not aware that he was about to leave the place the "Wig-Wag"
which though not a Mohawk is Indian,
and very appropriate, conveying the idea of a friendly and happy relations between the Mohawks, who were at one time deadly enemies.

The grand council has come and gone and from appearances was not the success of its promoters expected. The Mohawks of our Reserve are becoming too enlightened to take much interest in the "Wig-Wag". The farewell we predict tend to remove the scales from the eyes of the few deluded poor wowers
who still believe in the "Wig-Wag".

The Reverend A. L. Geen, of Belleville, conducted the services in the churches on the Reserve very acceptably on Sunday last. The Minister of the Methodist Church, the Rev. Mr.
Sargeant, spent Tuesday the 19th at the parsonage.

THE ST. CLAIR TUNNEL.

SARITA, Aug. 28.—This morning at 10 o'clock the two shields of the St. Clair Tunnel were only 90 feet apart. For purposes of observation, a drift eight feet in diameter was cut from one to the other, and Messrs. Joseph Hobson, the chief engineer of the tunnel; Charles McKenzie, M.P.E., the director of the company; and Dr. T. G. Johnston, the company's medical adviser at this point, started from the American entrance and the tunnel, the distance between the tunnel, Mr. Hobson being the first man to pass through the opening. The British flag was hoisted, and he was received with a cheering shout from the hundreds of men engaged in the work, accompanied by the cheering of boat whistles and the ringing of bells, which announced to the citizens the interesting fact. Before the expiration of the present week the entire main portion of the tunnel will be completed, and the accuracy with which those shields were guided has been marvellous, as it was found that they were directly in line, and varying the slightest. The obstacles that have been met with and overcome were such that the public has no conception of them. It is compelled by the fact that from the day the shields were lowered into their position to commence the work twelve months will not have elapsed until the 7th of September next, at which time this great international undertaking will be completed. It is confidently expected that before the expiration of the present year the Grand Trunk Railway Company will be running their passenger and freight trains through the tunnel by the underground passage. The success of this great work is due to the engineering skill and ability of Mr. Joseph Hobson, chief engineer of the Great Western Division, and the Canadian engineers who conceived, planned and executed it, and who under the greatest difficulties has had the most perfect success in the possibility of the work. It is worthy of note that it was left to Canadian engineers to put the first tunnel through this great water way and also to put the first tunnel through the Hoosier Mountains. Canadians may well feel proud of these great facts.

Some people wonder why it is that new stores attract the customers away from old established ones. It cannot be a better class of goods, nor more polite clerks, nor better stores. These elements eliminated, it may be smaller profits, though not always. The only plausible solution may be found in the fact that the new firm are pointed in their description of articles and prices that strike the reader, and have on hand the bait thrown out to catch a call. Once inside, the clerk, up to snuff, finds out all the wants of the customer and secures a pretty good order. Moral, to prevent customers being stolen away, consult how you can interest them and hold them. Then use the most attractive and well-offered means viz, the page of a live Newspaper.

Knocked Spots Off Tommy.

How a Pittsburgh Boy Was Dressed with Britonite and Molasses.

A lady is studying the social science of cookery, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, relates the following story:

A small boy, more or less the light of a certain household and the scourge of his neighborhood, showed signs of acquiring the complexion of a leopard. That is to say, his mother noticed that her treasure's face was becoming terribly spotted.

She called the family doctor's attention to the trouble, and he said in the brusque-offhand way we all know so well: "Give him a level teaspoonful of brimstone every day."

The doctor's word was law in that family and a considerable quantity of brimstone was procured at once. Omitting the details of administration, we may pass on to the next visit of the doctor to the family of the boy.

"Well, how's Tommy?" was the doctor's first question.

"Oh, he's very much worse. As you ordered, I gave him eleven spoonfuls of brimstone, and he's been raising."

"Eleven spoonfuls? I never ordered that many," shouted the doctor, as he sprang up stairs towards Tommy's room. A level spoonful was what I said."

THE AUTHOR OF "BEAUTIFUL SNOW"

Survival of a Rural Claimant to the Authorship Who is Living in New York.

There died last week in New York, and pre-buried in the Free Club plot in Cypress Hills Cemetery, the man who was in all probability the author of "Beautiful Snow"—the one of all predecessors to the authorship who added the strongest evidence to support his claim. His name was John W. Watson.

In questions of disputed authorship it is well to examine the works of the different claimants, and find whose style approximates that of the piece in controversy. Applying this test no one can doubt for a moment that Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox wrote "Laugh and the World Laughs with You," and that Col. Joyce was mistaken when he claimed the poem as his literary offering. A little more satisfactory proof to persons who are not judges of style is the giving of the time and circumstances of publication which if proven, made invalid the claims of all who supposed they wrote the poem at a later date. This the verse, "You Kissed Me," which originally appeared in the New York Tribune under the initials "H. G." and were supposed to be by Horace Greeley, is now generally considered to be the work of Horace Greeley, he not only giving priority of publication over his competitors, but establishing his ability to write such a poem by his subsequent compositions.

The credit of writing "Beautiful Snow" has been more liberally fought for than that of any fugitive piece in American literature. The poem was attributed in 1885, when it first appeared, to half a dozen well-known writers who promptly disclaimed it. A written copy of it was found on the body of a dead woman which was taken from the Ohio River, and the newspapers far and wide chose to champion the unfortunate as the author. One McMaster, a portrait painter of New York, came out in a letter in the public prints in 1885, modestly declaring himself to be the writer. In 1887 came one of the most persistent of claimants, who is still living; and still firmly convinced of the truth of his assertions, this is Col. William Allen Sullivan, soldier, painter, and is 73 years old. William Allen Sullivan, who is still living, and still firmly convinced of the truth of his assertions, this is Col. William Allen Sullivan, soldier, painter, and is 73 years old.

As said before, however, the claim of the man who died the other day remains the strongest and for two reasons. His other verses published in "Beautiful Snow," with other poems, led one to think that he was capable of producing the disputed verse; secondly, he gave the most satisfactory account of the circumstances of its publication. In a letter written Nov. 1, 1885, to the publishers of his volume he says:

Where I got the idea it is hard to recall at this late date, but it certainly was not from "sitting in any Broadway saloon," or having the idea suggested by the "other woman" who wrote it as I have written hundred other things, from the thought of the moment.

"Beautiful Snow" was first published on the front page of No. 100, Nov. 8, 1885, of Harper's Weekly, and was immediately copied all over the country, but, of course, as it had not any name attached to it—anonymous publication—being then the policy of the Harpers—nobody knew me as the writer and to tell the truth, I did not wish to become known as the author, knowing, as I have since and better cause to be certain of, the reputation of an author and a poet would ruin me as a business man.

There is one singular circumstance connected with this poem which has always been a mystery to me. I have always contended that popularity is an accident; but in this case, and only in this case, within a few days after the publication of "Beautiful Snow" I met two friends in the street who said they recognized the poem as mine by the style and proved to me that they were right. Both these gentlemen are alive and can remember the circumstances. The first is Thomas Watson, who is an attorney at law, as he is at the age of 80; the second, Clarence Eyring, the brother of the well-known artist, Sir Eyring, and himself an artist of great ability.

The letter goes on to denounce Col. Sullivan who character the writer impugns. Col. Sullivan was visited last week by a reporter of the New York World and he vehemently reiterated his claim of years ago.

"I married in 1850," said he, "as pretty a girl as anybody ever saw in this country. She was as good as she was beautiful. Her family was one of the best in New York City. Her father had been a Senator. The family was very wealthy. I was sent to England on business and took her with me. High life and gayety were too much for her. She became insane. She ran away to America with me. She died in a lunatic asylum. I never saw her again. I never saw her again. I never saw her again."

Its dimensions were as follows: From tip of snout to tip of tail, 6 feet 3 inches; across the body, 4 feet 11 inches deep of flesh, 4 inches. There was no means of weighing, but 100 pounds was considered a low estimate of the fish's weight.

Experiments by means of photographic plates in the Mediterranean Sea show that in the middle of a sunny day in summer the rays of the sun do not penetrate the waters of the sea to a depth of more than 100 fathoms. In September the distance penetrated is much reduced, the depression on the plates at the above depth not being greater than that made by the rays of the sun.

Now that a New York hackman has been sentenced to two years and ten months imprisonment for snatching a $5 bill from a stranger whom he had induced to enter his cab and make him a ride, it is not a wonder for a hotel and the cab was free, and had subsequently forced to pay, people may take a carriage in the metropolis with some sort of confidence.

Just about the time the rain ceased small snakes from twelve to sixteen inches long fell to the ground in vast numbers. These were collected and when they struck the ground seemed to be somewhat stunned. The snakes have a bluish color.

It is a fact how badly we get impatient of history matter. Ask any well-informed person who invented the sewing machine and the reply will be Elias Howe, which is far from the truth in the case. The first sewing machine was patented in England by Thomas Saint in 1790, sixty years before Howe was an exhibitor in the Royal Agricultural Hall, Isle of Wight.

A watchmaker in Newcastle, England, recently completed a set of three gold short-stroke watches in which the balance wheels, excellent time, the dial being only three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter. The hands are set by turning the one in the middle.

Dr. J. G. Brooks, of Belfast, Me., has a wicked parrot that will swear even when ladies are passing the house. The other day a gentleman passing tried to get the parrot, but never a word would he say. The man was angry at shaking his fist at the bird, and said, "I'll get you to-day, you scoundrel." The parrot got in his first word and called the man all the hard names imaginable until he was glad to take a hasty retreat.

A Methodist church at Lowell, Mass., has decided to use water instead of wine in the communion service. One of the members, who has been a drunkard, and has been his own saint, and had twice returned to the old habits through the temptation placed in his way at the communion service, was the cause of the change. The minister said he could never pass the wine to him again, and the church unanimously consented to use water instead.

Deseronto Canoe Club.

and Boating Club will be held at the General Office of the Rathbun Company this evening at 7:30 o'clock. As matters of importance are to be considered a large attendance of members is requested.

Three Willows Go to Fishing.

Messrs. W. D. McKee, W. C. B. Rathbun and W. G. Egar went out on the yacht Ripple on Wednesday and cruised the coasting a great variety of fish, including several splendid bass. A lunch basket of magnificent proportions was empty when they reached port.

Hero's Time Table.

We direct attention to the time table of the steamer Hero which will be found elsewhere in these columns. It will be observed that during fall week every opportunity is afforded the travelling public to reach Kingston at early hours and cheap rates. Study the table carefully.

Destructive Fire.

On Wednesday afternoon lightning struck
the barn of Mr. Herman, Adolphstown.
The barn, driving house, sheds, two large stacks of grain and all the season's crops were destroyed by fire. A man named Brookes had worked the farm on shares with Herman this season, and lost everything.
Herman had an insurance of $500 on the buildings. The loss is quite heavy.

Police Court.

Lewis A. Green, Indian, was arrested by Chief Gwynne on Tuesday for drunkenness
and next day Police Commissioner Green fined him $5.00 and costs, or $8.20 in all, to be paid by Sept. 17th, failing which he will be lodged in jail for a term. Sam Claus, Indian, for a similar offence was fined $5.00
and costs or $8.45 in all to be paid by Monday, or failing which, fifteen days in jail.

Highly Honoured.

Dr. Oronhyatekha, Supreme Chief Ranger,
has appointed Bro. James Stokes, of Court Deseronto, No. 53, to the high position of Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters. With a host of friends we congratulate Bro. Stokes in his advancement to such an important office.
If unalloyed with in the cause is an ambition, no member is more entitled to such a distinction.

Canoe Club Parade.

We understand that the annual parade of the Deseronto Canoe and Boating Club will be held some evening next week. It is proposed to start from the club house about 6.30
in the eve, and in tow of some steamer and thence proceed to "Poplar Nook." It is an indispensable rule that all members shall be accompanied by their best girls and
as music, mirth and illumination of crafts and crews will be in order, we predict an enjoyable time.

The Public School.

The public school re-opened on Monday with a very good attendance of pupils. Inspector John came down from Belleville to be present at the opening and assist in the re-organization of the departments. The teaching staff this year consists of Principal
G. A. Cole, and Misses Demore, Pook, Robertson, Dugman, Solmes and Clark.
Miss Demore takes the department formerly in charge of Miss Porter. Miss Pook succeeds Miss Demore and Miss Robertson takes Miss Pook's former room. The other teachers take their old departments.
Teachers look grey and fatigued by their vacation and everything points to a busy and successful fall term.

Presbyterian Picnic.

The picnic of the Presbyterian Sabbath School came off on Friday, 22nd inst. The weather during the day proved very unfavourable and militated against the success of the event. Nevertheless a large company sailed on the "Hero" to Frimley's Cove, the place selected for the day's festivities. Mr.
Frimley kindly placed his house and boats at the disposal of the visitors and a pleasant time under all the circumstances, was enjoyed. A number of games and sports were participated in by the children and dinner time showed that appetites were in the normal Deseronto condition. A portion of the excursionists went on to Kingston and enjoyed their visit to the Limestone City.
All reached home safely at 9:30 p. m.

Dangerous Bridge.

The bridge over Sucker Creek on the boundary road is a topic of much conversation at present, as every day it is becoming more dilapidated and liable to a collapse.
Some stranger or unwary traveller will lose his life probably by attempting to pass over the structure after dark or even in the day time. There is no article to warn people of its dangerous condition. The heavy fall rains will soon be on and the boundary road,
with the waters in the creek raised, will again be impassable for ordinary traffic.
We learn that some good Samaritan—Hungerford man probably—did post up a piece of white paper on the bridge with the warning "Beware of this Bridge" but it has been removed and people are left to their fate.

Midland District Millers' Convention.

Mr. R. Rayburn, representing the Deseronto Flour Mills, attended a meeting of the Midland District Millers' Association at Peterboro on Friday, 22nd inst. There was a good attendance of members. The general object of the meeting was to get an expression of opinion as to securing for grinding in transit railway rates by which the millers would have the same freight privileges as grain dealers to enable them to Dominion Association to deal with the subject in the light of the feeling of the local associations. The meeting decided to retain the use of the grain trade. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. McLean, Peterboro;
vice-president, C. Smith, Campbellford;
secretary, J. McLean, Lakefield.

Laid at Rest.

On Friday last week Mr. Frederick Smith, of Pictou, died at the age of thirty years. Mr. Smith had, for a number of years, been steward on the "Alexandria," and his sudden death made a host of friends among the travelling public who will be grieved to learn of his death. The funeral took place from his mother's residence at Pictou on Sunday. Rev. Mr.
Cuthbert conducted the services. Court Pictou, No. 177, I. O. F., of which the deceased was a member, attended in a body and buried the brother with the full honours of the order. Brothers H. M. Love, C. D. H.
C. E. R. and J. J. Jones, of Pictou, and
B. Dowdell, Chap., read the Foresters' burial service. The following members of the Court acted as pall-bearers:
Wm. Shiller, Wm. Owens, J. McMillan,
L. McCaw, M. Spafford and J. Roblin.
Members of both the local boards united and headed the procession of Foresters who numbered over eighty. Bros. James Stokes, Cant. Christie, John Anderson and A. L.
Chandler, members of Court Deseronto, No.
93, attended the funeral.

Kingston Business College re-opens on Sept. 1st, with a full staff of teachers. This school has earned the reputation of thorough and practical work.

The Last.

The stmr. Ella Ross carries her last Friday excursion from Pictou to Belleville today. To-morrow she carries her last Saturday excursion from Belleville to Pictou
for this season.

Social.

A social in connection with the Presbyterian Sunday School will be held at the home of Mr. F. J. Sims, Dundas street, on Thursday evening Sept. 4th. Admission,
two for twenty-five cents.

Hope So.

The Napanee Beaver thinks it is the intention of the Rathbun Company, as soon as the G. T. R. double track is completed, to establish through connection and train service between Deseronto and the line of the K. N. & W. Ry. The coaches, locomotives, etc., are now being marked, it is supposed,
with that purpose in view.

Not Guilty.

George Casey, of Deseronto, was arrested in Belleville last week charged with the larceny of $35 from Gilbert Thresher. He pleaded not guilty and it was proved that Thresher was drinking and the magistrate
said he was convinced that the accused did not take the money and he therefore discharged him.

Freak of Nature.

A freak of nature was shown in the village of Marmora last Monday, in a chicken recently hatched out by a hen belonging to Mr. John Dunlop and his mate. It was six miles north of the village. It has four legs, four wings, two tails and one head. It was alive but feeble at the time of its capture
from the shell, and shortly afterwards died.

Grand Union Picnic.

The Roman Catholic congregation of Cassville and environs had a grand union picnic at Varsity Lake on Saturday, August 30th. There will be a long programme of athletic sports for which liberal prizes will be awarded. A quadrille band will furnish music all day long. Boats on the lake free for all and meals and refreshments at a low price on the grounds. The K.
N. & W. R. will run special trains at reduced rates. This picnic will afford an excellent day's outing for pleasure seekers.

The Markets.

There have been large markets this week
and buyers have had a good demand for all their products of the farm and garden.
Butter was scarce and sold at 25 cents in the roll and 20 cents packed. Potatoes were also scarce and brought 75 cents. Apples were plentiful and sold from 50 to 60 cents;
pears 75 cents per bushel; plums 40 to 50 cents per peck and cherries sold for $1.00 per
bag. Eggs 12 to 14 cents. Tomatoes 20 cents per peck; cucumbers 3 cents, beets 4 & 5 cents, corn 6 to 8 cents a dozen. Chickens 40 to 50 cents.

Better Mail Service.

The Pictou Times urges the propriety of forwarding the western mail from Toronto via Deseronto. It very properly states that the mail might be despatched from Deseronto
by the steamer immediately after the arrival of the train from the west, and thus the mail would be received at Pictou more than an hour sooner than by the present C. O. R. route. This would prove a great benefit to business men. This is a reasonable proposition but, unfortunately,
it takes years to drive any reasonable suggestion into the departmental officers who direct affairs in this part of the province.

STABBING AFFRAY IN THE PENITENTIARY.

KINGSTON, Aug. 27.—This morning a collision between two convicts occurred in the penitentiary, one stabbing another twice with a pair of scissors. The altercation commenced while the men were leaving their cells. The victim was stabbed in the shoulder and abdomen, but not seriously.
Dr. Lavell was called and the wounded man immediately after the stabbing, and had him carried for. Hollingsworth, of Prescott, formerly a carter, was the man stabbed,
and his assailant was Longford, of Toronto.
Hollingsworth accused Longford of a nameless offence. The shears were carried from the cell of Longford, in which Longford works.
When Hollingsworth was stabbed, he fell back, crying out that he was being murdered.
The wound in the abdomen is the most painful. Longford is a man of vicious disposition. He is in his cell awaiting the enquiry.

Canada or the United States
for the balance of the year.
